Clemson vs. Maryland

This is Clemson Football

Jackie Robinson 6-7 Senior Spotlight

Leadership is an intangible quality that cannot be measured by a stat sheet or highlight reel. Jackie Robinson exhibits that quality as a Tiger receiver. The President of LifeLine and graduate student is a leader off the field in addition to doing invaluable tasks on the field, such as blocking for his teammates.

Bernard Rambert 10-11 Senior Spotlight

Patience is a trait that Bernard Rambert has become accustomed to in his four seasons at Clemson. He has waited his turn behind Travis Zachery to become the starting tailback this season. It all began against Maryland his freshman year in his first career game, when he scored two touchdowns in the Tiger win.

J.J. McKelvey 15 Senior Spotlight

Most athletes have a signature moment, one play where they make or do not make a play, that changes the outcome of a game or even an entire season. For J.J. McKelvey, that moment came on September 29, 2001 at Georgia Tech, when his 63-yard touchdown catch on fourth down led Clemson to victory.

Jeff Scott 49 Senior Spotlight

On a percentage basis, Jeff Scott, the son of Clemson Offensive Coordinator Brad Scott, is directly involved in scoring plays more often than 95 percent of his teammates. He does not receive recognition from game to game, but his responsibility is pivotal in every game as the holder for Clemson's placekicks.

Bennie Cunningham 64 ACC 50-Year Anniversary Player

It was a natural thing - Bennie Cunningham coming to Clemson to play football for the Tigers. Now, after being named first-team All-American twice and winning two Super Bowl rings, Cunningham has been tabbed as the greatest tight end in Atlantic Coast Conference history.

Willie Anderson 107 Greatest ACC Performances

The year was 1974. The opponent was none other than arch-rival South Carolina. The player who turned in the greatest game ever by a Clemson defensive lineman was Willie Anderson. Better known in those days as "Big Will," he recorded 21 tackles, a seemingly unattainable mark for an interior lineman.

Tigers Bowl Eligible

Clemson has a 6-4 record and became bowl eligible with its 42-12 victory at North Carolina last weekend. This is the 15th time in the last 18 years Clemson has been eligible for a bowl game. It is the fourth-straight year Clemson has been eligible under Head Coach Tommy Bowden. If the Tigers advance to a bowl, it would be the first time since the 1988-91 era that Clemson has gone to a bowl game at least four years in a row. It would be special for Clemson's senior class. No Clemson senior class has gone to four bowls since the senior class of 1991, led by Levon Kirkland and Ed McDaniel.

Clemson is eligible for selection to the Gator Bowl (January 1), Peach Bowl (December 31), Tangerine Bowl (Dec. 23), Continental Tire Bowl (December 28), and Seattle Bowl (December 30).

Whitehurst 2-0 as Starter

Clemson red-shirt freshman quarterback Charlie Whitehurst has posted a 2-0 record as a starter this year. Both victories have come within the last two weeks, victories on the road at Duke and North Carolina.

Whitehurst is the first Clemson freshman quarterback to win his first two starts since Dexter McCleon did it in the last two games of the 1993 season. McCleon defeated South Carolina in the regular-season finale and Kentucky in the Peach Bowl to end that season. McCleon then moved to the secondary and never played quarterback again, therefore he ended his career with a 2-0 record.

Whitehurst is trying to become the first freshman since 1985 to win three starts. The only other Clemson freshman quarterback to win more than two games as a starter is Rodney Williams, who posted a 5-3 record in 1985 as a red-shirt freshman. Williams won his first four games that year as a starter, the only Clemson freshman to win his first four games as a starter.

As you can see by the chart below, it is difficult for a freshman to lead a team to victory. Clemson freshman starting quarterbacks are just 14-17 since 1952, so Whitehurst's accomplishments are significant.

| Name | Year | W-L | First Start |
|--------------------|------|--------------|----------------------|
| Steve Fuller | 1975 | 0-1 | L, at Alabama |
| Willie Jordan | 1975 | 1-5 | L, at Georgia Tech |
| Rodney Williams | 1985 | 5-3 | W, Virginia |
| Louis Solomon | 1992 | 1-0 | W, Duke |
| Patrick Sapp | 1992 | 1-3 | L, Wake Forest |
| Dexter McCleon | 1993 | 2-0 | W, at South Carolina |
| Nealon Greene | 1994 | 2-4 | L, Georgia |
| Woodrow Dantzler | 1998 | 0-1 | L, North Carolina |
| Charlie Whitehurst | 2002 | 2-0 | W, at Duke |
| Totals | | 14-17 | 4-5 |

Whitehurst Already Has Broken Records

Charlie Whitehurst has started just two games, but he already has established 22 Clemson records on a game and season basis. Granted, 15 of them are freshman marks, but still, Whitehurst is off to quite a start statistically and in the win column. It is safe to say it is the best start ever for a Clemson quarterback from an offensive production and touchdowns standpoint.

In his first start at Duke two weeks ago, Whitehurst completed 34-52 passes for 420 yards and four touchdowns. He threw for 215 yards in the fourth quarter alone, a Clemson record for one period. His 34 completions were a Clemson single-game record, as were his 420 passing yards. In fact, his 420 yards passing were the second-best ever for an ACC quarterback in his first collegiate start. Dave Brown threw for 444 yards for Duke in his first collegiate start in 1989.

Charlie Whitehurst's passing efficiency rating of 161.9 would rank second in the nation if he had enough attempts.

Against North Carolina, Whitehurst completed 12-20 passes for 274 yards and four more touchdowns. His passing efficiency rating computed to 241.1, an all-time Clemson record for passing efficiency in a single game given a minimum of 20 attempts.

Whitehurst now has completed 64-102 passes for 874 yards and nine touchdowns. He has thrown just one interception. His 161.9 passing efficiency is at a record rate for any Clemson quarterback given a minimum of 100 attempts. He has already broken the Clemson freshman record for touchdown passes, passing yards, and completions.

Great Day for Clemson Track Team

Clemson has a history of dual sport athletes, especially when it comes to players who have run track and played skill positions on the Tiger football team. James Trapp is still in the NFL (10th year) with the Baltimore Ravens. He might have been Clemson's greatest track athlete in history and is in the Clemson Hall of Fame for his accomplishments. Doug Thomas, the only Clemson player in history with two kickoff returns for touchdowns in the same year, (1990) was also an All-American in track before playing with the Seattle Seahawks.

The tradition continues based on last Saturday's game at North Carolina. Airese Currie and Tye Hill both will run on Clemson's track squad for Bob Pollock's team this year. Hill red-shirted last year due to a foot injury, but Currie earned All-America honors on the 4x100 relay team. Clemson finished second in that event outdoors at the NCAA Championships in Baton Rouge, LA last year. Currie has been timed in 10.40 in the 100 meters, while Hill's best is 10.51.

Both players nearly had 100-yard days at North Carolina last weekend. Currie caught two passes for 90 yards, while Hill, seeing his most extensive action of the season, had 14 carries for 105 yards. For the season, Currie has 11 catches for 242 yards and three touchdowns. His 22.0 yards per reception figure is best on the team. Hill has 204 yards in 35 carries in 2002, a 5.8 average, best among Tiger runningbacks.

Currie has jump-started the Tigers on the comeback trail each of the last two weeks. His 47-yard touchdown reception on a fourth-and-10 play from the Duke 47 brought Clemson from 14 points back to just a 24-17 deficit. At North Carolina, Clemson trailed 9-0 before he caught an 83-yard scoring pass from Charlie Whitehurst. That was the third-longest pass play in Clemson history and the longest since 1978.

Hunt Groza Award Semi-Finalist

Clemson placekicker Aaron Hunt has been named as one of the 20 semi-finalists for the Lou Groza Award, the honor presented to the top placekicker in college football.

The award will be presented by the FedEx Orange Bowl in a ceremony on Tuesday, December 10 at the Sheraton West Palm Beach Hotel at City Place in West Palm Beach, FL. The award is named in the honor of Lou Groza, who revolutionized the kicking position by creating the idea that a player could be exclusively used as a kicker. He played 21 seasons with the Cleveland Browns, with whom he won four NFL championships and the NFL Player-of-the-Year award in 1954.

Hunt has made 11 of 14 field goals and 33 of 34 on extra points so far this season, and is now 31-42 on field goals and 122-126 on extra points for his Clemson career. He is currently 32nd in the nation in field goals per game and is 51st in scoring this year.

Hunt, now Clemson's career leader in extra points, is seventh in school history in scoring (215). At Duke, he kicked a 21-yard field goal with eight seconds left to beat Duke 34-31. It marked the second time in his career that he has won a game with a field goal with less than 10 seconds remaining.

Clemson vs. Maryland Series

Clemson holds a 27-21-2 all-time advantage in the series with Maryland. The first game of the series was played in 1952, one year before both teams became charter members of the ACC. Maryland won each of the first four games in the series.

Clemson has won eight of the last nine games against the Terrapins, but fell to the eventual ACC Champions last year by a score of 37-20. Derrick Hamilton became the first Clemson player since Doug Thomas in 1990 to return a kickoff for a touchdown in the second half of that contest.

Clemson has a 15-10 record against Maryland in games played at Memorial Stadium. The last time Maryland defeated the Tigers at Clemson was a 34-31 victory back in 1985. Maryland won the ACC Championship that year under former coaching-great Bobby Ross. Clemson has won eight in a row over Maryland in Death Valley, including a 35-14 win in 2000.

Perhaps the most significant win in the series for Clemson was in 1978, when Charley Pell led the Tigers to a 28-24 win over Maryland, who was 9-1 at the time. Steve Fuller completed an 87-yard scoring pass to Jerry Butler in that game, still the second longest in Clemson history. Last week, when Charlie Whitehurst completed an 83-yard scoring pass to Airese Currie, it was the longest completion for the Tigers since that game in 1978.

Tommy Bowden boasts a 2-1 record against Maryland during his tenure at Clemson. He led Clemson to a 42-30 victory at College Park, MD in his first year thanks to 435 yards of total offense from Woodrow Dantzler. Two years ago, Clemson came away with a 35-14 victory on Homecoming thanks to 231 all-purpose running yards by Rod Gardner and three interceptions by Alex Ardley.

Maryland Has Won Seven in a Row in 2002

Maryland is having another outstanding season under Head Coach Ralph Friedgen. The Terrapins posted a 10-2 record and played in the Orange Bowl last year in winning the ACC. This year, Maryland has an 8-2 record and has lost only to Notre Dame in the opener (22-0) and Florida State (37-10) in the third game. Therefore, Friedgen is 18-4 in two years at Maryland and his only losses are to Notre Dame, Florida, and Florida State (twice). What is very impressive is that he has lost just one game on an opponent's home field. Two of the losses came at neutral sites.

The season got off to a rocky start for Maryland, as standout tailback Bruce Perry was lost early due to injury. His loss had a direct effect on Maryland's 1-2 start. Perry was the ACC Offensive Player-of-the-Year last year, as he beat out Clemson's Woodrow Dantzler by a couple of votes. Perry played last week, his second game of the year, and has 11 rushes for 42 yards for the season.

Chris Downs is the leading rusher for Maryland with 894 yards and 13 touchdowns. Josh Allen has added 377 yards and eight scores. Scott McBrien has developed into an outstanding passer. He has a 145.5 passing efficiency, 13th best in the nation. He has thrown just five interceptions and that will be a challenge for the Clemson defense that has picked off 16, best in the ACC. O'Brien has completed 108 of 189 for 1,753 yards.

O'Brien's favorite receiver is Scooter Monroe, who has 27-497 and two scores. Jafar Williams has added 21 catches. Nick Novak is another offensive weapon as a placekicker. He has made 15-18 field goals and 43 consecutive extra points for 88 total points. We will see two of the Lou Groza semifinalists on display in Death Valley today.

The defense is led by E.J. Henderson. He led the ACC in tackles and tackles for loss last year and has had a similar effect for Maryland this year. Maryland is seventh in the nation in scoring defense.

Tigers Look for Win Over Ranked Team

Clemson is looking for its first win over a ranked team this season. Fourteen of the last 16 years and each of the last three seasons Clemson has upset a top-25 team. Last year, Clemson downed #9 Georgia Tech in Atlanta, GA. Clemson's highest-ranked road win in 20 years.

Clemson is 0-3 against ranked teams this year. All three ranked teams Clemson has played have been ranked 12th or better entering the game. Clemson has dropped decisions to ranked teams from Georgia, Florida State, and N.C. State so far this year. Maryland enters the game ranked 19th in both polls. Clemson last defeated a ranked team at home in the final game of the 2000 season, when Clemson downed South Carolina 16-14.

M & M Boys Lead Secondary

Clemson has one of the top cornerback combinations in the country in senior Brian Mance and freshman Justin Miller. Both players have five interceptions so far this season to rank in a tie for 17th in the country in that category. Clemson and Texas are the only schools in the nation with two of the top-20 interception leaders.

So far this season, Mance, a senior, has 48 tackles, 10 pass breakups, and 15 total passes defended. Miller has 48 tackles, seven passes deflected and 12 total passes defended. He is the national interception leader among freshmen. They have had at least one interception between them in five straight games.

Both have also shown their abilities as return men over their careers. Miller had an 80-yard kickoff return for a touchdown against N.C. State and has a 37.2 yard average for the season. Mance has not had many opportunities this year, but he ranked in the top 30 in the nation in both kickoff returns and punt returns in 2000. He had an 88-yard punt return for a score against Georgia Tech that year.

Eason Has Seven Sacks

Nick Eason continued his outstanding final season in the win at North Carolina last weekend. The graduate student from Lyons, GA had six tackles to lead all defensive linemen and added two tackles for loss, including his seventh sack of the year.

Eason is now among the top five in the ACC in sacks and his total is the most by a Clemson defensive tackle since Trevor Pryce had 7.5 sacks in 1996. Pryce is now an All-Pro defensive tackle with the Denver Broncos.

For the year, the graduate student is fifth on the team in tackles (56). He is also tied for the team lead in tackles for loss (9). Eason was Clemson's defensive MVP in 2000 when he had seven sacks at defensive end. He had an injury-plagued 2001 year, but has come back strong in 2002.

Freshman Justin Miller, pictured above pulling down his fifth interception at North Carolina, and senior Brian Mance are atop the ACC with five picks apiece.

Dr. Johnny Rheney is a dentist in Orangeburg, SC. In 1984, Dr. Rheney got a visit from a small three-year-old boy who had just lost three of his front teeth. The boy had lost his teeth while playing football with kids in his neighborhood and with an imaginary ball, because he did not have a real one. As the young boy sat in his dentist's chair, Dr. Rheney, a 1976 Clemson graduate, learned of the boy's passion for the game of football. Rheney responded by saying, "One day you'll play football at my school - at Clemson."

Fast forward to 1998.

Jackie J. Robinson, who at age three sat in Dr. Rheney's office crying over three lost teeth, signed his letter of intent to play football at Clemson University, bringing truth to the words spoken of him 15 years previously.

Robinson, now a graduate wide receiver on the Clemson football team, grew up in a neighborhood where football was his life. "I've always played football," Robinson said. "I would play in the yard by myself, throwing a ball, tackling myself, falling down on the ground, and throwing the ball up again. Football is something I've always enjoyed. My mom said I was playing football in the womb."

When Robinson was in first grade, football caused another trip to a doctor, as the six-year-old broke his wrist while playing football with third graders. "I always played with older, bigger guys so I could get better, and that time I was running with the ball and got slammed into the monkey bars," Robinson explained. "It was OK, though, because I was playing with older guys. I was proving myself."

Robinson's quest to prove himself and become a successful football player took great strides at around the same time he broke his wrist. Brian Robinson, Jackie's older cousin, lived in the same neighborhood, and devoted long hours to help the children in the neighborhood improve on their athletic skills.

"Brian kept me going," Robinson stated. "He would come home from high school football practice and line all the neighborhood kids up and say, 'OK, ya'll salute me.' Then we would have to say 'Good evening, Mr. Robinson. Please slap us one time, sir.'"

"He'd slap us, then we'd start working. He would take our heads and throw us down. He would say 'OK, you got the ball, you run into him, you tackle him.' We were five, six, and seven years old. I owe him a lot, because he really got my passion and competitiveness up. He helped me to deal with pain."

The training Brian provided his younger cousin paid off. Jackie, better known as "J.J." to his family, was successful in his little league football days, due in part to his mother's training and cooking.

"When I was 10, playing little league football, I had to make the weight limit, just like everybody else," Robinson said. "I weighed 116 or 117 pounds, and the limit was 115. I had to eat rice cakes, work out, and Mom was always there to make the right meals for me."

Robinson is not kidding when he says he had to work out. "Mom would pick me up from practice or school or whatever and drop me off about two miles from the house, and I would run home," Robinson said. "Anything to lose weight."

Robinson's resolve and determination led him to a very successful high school career at Orangeburg-Wilkinson High under head coach Tommy Brown. As a senior, Robinson had 75 receptions for 1,150 yards and eight touchdowns. His 1,150 receiving yards were good enough to place him first in the state among receivers.

His quarterback at O-W was former Clemson standout Woodrow Dantzler. Dantzler and Robinson connected for 51 completions and 700 yards and five touchdowns in 1996 at Orangeburg-Wilkinson High School.

Robinson was rewarded for his on-field performances. He was a member of the Atlanta Constitution's Super Southern Top 100, he was a SuperPrep All-America wide receiver, and a South-eastern Recruiting Alliance postseason All-American. Robinson earned USA Today Honorable Mention All-America honors as well as PrepStar All-America honors. He was rated the #15 wide receiver in the Southeast and the #3 player in South Carolina by First Down Recruiting.

Robinson's athletic abilities were not limited to the gridiron. He was a four-year track letterman who finished third in the state in the 400-meter hurdles and fifth in the state in the 110-meter hurdles. Robinson was also on the Junior Olympic team in 1996.

"I was a decathlete, because I wanted to do it all and be the best that I could at it all," Robinson explained. "Being on the Junior Olympic team was great because of the experience it afforded me. I was able to go to so many places and to meet so many people."

Given all his athletic skills, Robinson was not content with only being a good athlete. He had an overall high school grade point average of 4.12. It was his determination to be the best that he could be that enabled him to be so successful in so many different areas of his life.

His success reached a new level on that February day in 1998, when he signed his letter of intent to play football for Clemson University. After red-shirting the 1998 season, Robinson made progress athletically. On the football field, Robinson lettered as a freshman wide receiver, played 151 plays in 10 games, and caught two passes. He caught his first touchdown pass of his career against Duke, a 25-yard scoring reception from Dantzler.

Catching passes from the same quarterback in high school and in college was special to Robinson. "Playing with him in both high school and college was great," Robinson said. "We had been playing football together since we were nine, because we played on the same little league team. It was a real pleasure being able to play college ball with somebody you grew up playing with. We used to look at tapes of our little league games and say stuff like 'Hey, you remember this?'"

Robinson's freshman campaign also saw significant personal gains, despite how things started out. "It was tough when I first got here," he said. "I went to parties and stuff, and you think that's what you want to do when you get to college. But, if you're not raised that way, it's really not hard to keep from doing that stuff. I realized during my freshman year that I can have fun other ways. I would rather be praising God than partying."

Robinson has significantly grown in his relationship with God throughout his years at Clemson.

Robinson has been valuable to the Tiger offense in more ways than just numbers. His blocking efforts have enabled Clemson's short passing game to flourish.

Jackie Robinson

Darren Bruce, advisor to Clemson's football team, has had a considerable impact on Robinson.

"Growing up," Robinson explained, "I knew God and I believed in God, but every day you try to grow closer to Him. Reverend Bruce helped me to raise my standards and grow in my relationship with God. I can't thank him enough for what he's done in my life."

Robinson's competitiveness carries over into his spiritual life, and that mix has sharpened him as a believer.

"I see my roommate, Ahmad Mitchell, get up in the morning and study the Bible," Robinson said. "It looked like he was doing more than me to grow closer to God. So I felt like I could be better. If he woke up at five in the morning, I would wake up at 4:50. We pushed each other. When you have people around holding you accountable, it makes you want to do right. In a way, that's my competitive nature coming out again."

Is this level of spiritual maturity Robinson displays surprising to those who know him best? "No," said his older sister, Alana. "I wish I could say that it is shocking to see him succeed. He is now and has always been so focused on what he wants. He's always put God first, and he's always wanted to do the honorable thing."

Robinson's mom, Janie, echoes the words of his sister. "One of the things I can honestly say is I wouldn't have expected anything different out of him because he's been so focused all his life. He used to tell us all the time that you have to do things because it's within you, not to please anybody else, and that's the way he's always been."

Those characterizations of Robinson are evident in every aspect of his life. He has the chance to join just a handful of Clemson football players in history who have been named to the ACC Academic Honor Roll in five different academic years.

Robinson is currently President of LifeLine, Clemson's football leadership organization. The membership-by-invitation-only group, comprised of football players only, works as a liaison between the football team and the community. LifeLine speaks to children at elementary schools, takes children on tours of Clemson's athletic facilities, and works to help groups such as the United Way.

When asked about his accomplishments, Robinson deflects the attention from himself. "I'm not in anything for me. I'm on the field to do the best I can do. I'm in the classroom to do the best I can do. I try to always give 110% at everything. I don't like to fall short, so I always apply myself. I've got too much pride to take something on and not succeed. But if I win awards or people say good things, it's nice and all, but that's not why I do things."

"I just go out there and try to be the best I can be," Robinson continued. "I'll be satisfied knowing I did the best I could do. I've got to look myself in the face and say, 'Did I give it my all?' If I didn't, I'm going to study harder next time, I'm going to train harder next time, I'm going to run harder next time. I might not be the most athletic person in the world, or the smartest, but I'm going to get the job done with what God gave me."

Robinson's philosophy on life has caught the attention and gained the respect of teammates and of his coaches. "Jackie Robinson is the consummate student-athlete," said Head Coach Tommy

Bowden. "He never has problems with his grades; he's involved with the community; he's a good, tough, hard-nosed player. He gives great effort; he doesn't complain. He's a hard worker. Every superlative you could think of can be attributed to him."

Robinson's position coach and recruiter, Rick Stockstill, thinks highly of #82 as well. "If you could draw up somebody that you want them to be, you would draw J.J.," said Coach Stockstill. "He's a great student, he's a wonderful person, and he's got a great heart. He works extremely hard at what he does on and off the field. He does a lot of the little things that don't show up on a box score, like blocking downfield. He's been a good example for young players on how to play the game, and he plays it 110% every snap, and he gives 110% on the other side of campus, too."

Robinson gives all the credit to God and to his family, a family that immediately includes his mother, Janie, his father, Jackie, his sisters, Alana and Joyce, his brother-in-law, Jason Ward, and his three-year-old niece, Janae. "My family has always been there to guide me and steer me in the right direction," Robinson said. "They have allowed me to grow up spiritually, believing in God, making sure I keep a good head on my shoulders."

"Ultimately, I thank God for everything. I can get advice from my mom, from my brother-in-law, from my roommates (Mitchell and former Clemson student manager Darrien Harrison); but without God, I would be nothing."

It is obvious that Robinson is far from nothing. His life has been full of a competitive nature that has been tempered by a love of Christ, and those personal characteristics are obvious as well.

"Even before Jackie became a standout football player, I followed him with interest because he's such a polite, thoughtful young man," said Dr. Rheney. "When kids come in the office, you talk with them, but something was always different about Jackie. He's just a special guy."

In his first three years as a Tiger, Bernard Rambert played the backup role - and he never said a word. This season was supposed to be Rambert's year. He was finally going to step out from behind the shadows with the opportunity to put together more performances like the one he had on the blue turf in the Humanitarian Bowl in Boise to end last year. Everyone was excited for him, and Rambert was determined to make it happen.

Rambert entered training camp this season focused on doing whatever it took to perform at a consistently high level.

"When it was finally my chance, during the summer, I just went extra hard," said the Summerville, SC native. "I always did extra repetitions. I tried to be the first one out there and the last to leave. You have to pay your dues. You can't just do everything that everyone else does and go out there and be happy. You have to try and be the best."

Plagued by injury early in the season, Rambert's senior year has not gone as well as everyone had hoped, especially for runningbacks' coach Burton Burns.

"I think the biggest disappointment, obviously, was this year. At the beginning of the year, he had some injury problems. Finally his time had come and there was no question about that, but even then he didn't get rattled."

Because of the time and work that Rambert has invested in the program, the Tiger coaching staff has grown accustomed to his high performance level at practice and on gameday. The coaching staff can always count on Rambert to put in the maximum amount of effort regardless of the situation.

"He's been our most consistent performer in the runningback position the last four years," Burns stated. "Selfishly, I was thinking when he got hurt early in the year that since he only played in one game, maybe we could red-shirt him and have him back another year, because he has become the comfort zone for us in the runningback position. He's a steady performer that you know you can depend on."

But one will not find Rambert worrying about what could have been - he tends to leave the wondering to others. When he was forced out of the lineup due to injury, Rambert became the Tigers' biggest fan. He wanted nothing more than for Yusef Kelly and the other Tiger runners to do well. At practice, Rambert did what he could to continue to improve despite his injuries.

"He just maintained the same composure, the same type of approach," said Burns. "He came to work every day and he worked hard, continuing to get himself ready mentally even when he couldn't do it physically."

This situation may have been enough to demoralize most student-athletes, but Rambert is not an ordinary student-athlete. Coach Burns repeatedly referred to him as "special," and while he is a special football player, Burns was usually referring to his personality.

When Kelly slid into the starting role at tailback, Rambert looked on with a smile as Kelly continued to gain valuable experience. Perhaps Rambert saw a little bit of himself in the red-shirt sophomore. After all, it was Rambert who owned the backup tailback role for three seasons.

No doubt Rambert has helped the younger backs along the way, and he enjoys seeing the younger guys benefiting from the tips he has shared from his own experience. Rambert has certainly experienced both the highs and lows of college football in his time at Death Valley.

It is no secret that the Clemson runningback corps has endured quite a bit of adversity in the past five years or so, but Rambert refers to his teammates as if they were his brothers.

"It has been pretty frustrating, but as a group, we've stuck together," Rambert said. "I knew that was the case when I got into a fight with one of the defensive linemen at practice. We were down on the ground, and the next thing you know the runningbacks just started clearing the way. Chad (Jasmin), Yusef, Tye (Hill), and Tyrone (Lee) - everybody was down there fighting too."

"Even before that day, we'd always hang out. We'd go out to eat together. When we go to parties, all of us go together. We've always been tight over the years."

Some might say that Rambert is "the man of the house" among Clemson runningbacks, and perhaps even more than that, the offensive unit. Often, if one pays attention closely, Rambert can be seen helping out his quarterback at the line of scrimmage communicate plays and audibles correctly to the rest of the offense. The leadership role has been a part of Rambert's life for quite some time.

When Rambert was just a boy and his own father died, he learned the importance of the leadership role and grew into it quickly.

Rambert's mother, Karen Bryant, fondly remembers the development of his maturity during his youth.

"He was a good young man, he never gave me any trouble," she recalled. "He was very understanding and he became a young man at an early age after his father died. So he was the man of the house, and everyone had to listen to him."

Growing up, Rambert shared a special relationship with his Uncle Paul, who helped him along his path from boyhood to manhood. He learned a lot from him, and his positive personalities have rubbed off on Rambert.

Ms. Bryant laughed as she remembered their relationship. "When they get together, they just go off and leave the rest of us."

Rambert fondly recalled some of the jokes his Uncle Paul used to play on him. "I remember one time when he spilled some hot grease on his foot and it was pretty bad, but he used to tease us by taking off his sock and running around yelling, 'My foot! My foot!'" He was always an upbeat guy."

Prior to this season, Uncle Paul passed away. Rambert left camp briefly to attend his uncle's funeral; and when he came back, he decided to dedicate his senior season to his uncle's memory. The funeral provided an opportunity for people to come forward and recount the many things that Uncle Paul had done to help them when adversity in their own lives struck.

"He was great in the community. He always had baseball teams and things like that for the kids," said Rambert. "At his funeral, two little girls got up and talked about how they didn't have any parents and how my uncle got up early every morning to take them to school."

"They said if it wasn't for him, they wouldn't be in school. One of these girls was 10 years old and the other one was six. It was a real bad situation, but now they're doing a lot better and they look forward to school. He just did simple things like that, and that's always how he was with us."

The influence of his family has taught Rambert not to let life's challenges get the best of him. Instead, he lowers his shoulder and just keeps his legs churning.

Rambert came to Clemson from Summerville High School, where he played for John McKissick, one of the nation's winningest coaches in high school football history. He rushed for 1,734 yards and scored 18 touchdowns as a senior at Summerville High.

In his first three years as a Tiger, Rambert accepted a supporting role behind Travis Zachery. During those three seasons, Rambert made the most of the opportunities he was given.

In 1999, the absence of Jarvis Austin from the Tiger lineup at the Maryland game forced coach Bowden to "activate" Rambert rather than red-shirting him for his freshman season. Despite his late start, Rambert took advantage of the time he was given and finished the game with two touchdowns.

When Zachery was forced out of the 1999 Peach Bowl due to injury, Rambert gained 70 yards on 18 carries against Mississippi State's #1 nationally-ranked defense.

And how can Tiger faithful forget last year's Humanitarian Bowl? When Zachery was unable to play, Rambert put together his finest performance as a Bernard Rambert has patiently waited his turn to become a starter in the Tiger backfield.

Tiger, as he rushed for 101 yards, had 77 receiving yards through the air, and finished the game with two touchdowns. Rambert's 178 all-purpose yards set a Clemson record for a bowl game.

"It definitely helped my confidence," said Rambert. "I had a couple of setbacks with injuries and things. It felt good to just go out there and play well when my team really needed me. What happened with Travis was unfortunate, but it was a big opportunity for me and I just went out there to play well."

After the breakout performance in the Humanitarian Bowl, many Tiger fans were left wondering what took so long to get him in the lineup. Even Coach Bowden admitted after the game that he probably should have found more time for Rambert in previous contests.

While Coach Bowden's comments may have made Rambert feel a little better about his circumstances, he wasted little time worrying about it. At a time when high profile athletes are flooding the media with proclamations of their own greatness or accusations that everyone is against them, Rambert simply lowers his shoulder and keeps his legs churning. Growing up, Rambert looked up to the example of Barry Sanders.

"He scored, and you could always tell that he'd been there before because he'd never showboat," explained Rambert. "He'd just give the ball back to the ref, shake his linemen's hands, and go about his business."

There is no doubt that Rambert has had his fair share of life's challenges. Each time a new challenge comes along, Rambert does whatever he can to overcome it. His teammates and coaches recognize his winning attitude.

"The things he's had to go through speak volumes for his attitude and personality," said Burns, a runningback himself for the powerhouse Nebraska Cornhusker program. "To me, he is a special player. He's a team player first. As a coach, he's the type of guy you want on the field at all times. He was very patient as far as waiting his turn, but more important than that is the fact that his attitude was, 'Coach, whenever you all need me, I'm ready.'"

Rambert is not quite sure what the future holds for him after this season. To be quite honest, he has not thought too much about the future. He is more concerned with ensuring that he does everything he can to help his teammates perform successfully today. Ms. Bryant credits her son for the maturity he has shown at such a young age.

"I'm proud of everything he does because of the fact that he knew from an early age that he had to pick his company and not let his company pick him," she said. "He is just a good young man all around."

Whatever Rambert decides to do, there is no doubt that he will be successful. He approaches life with a quiet confidence, because he knows he has the ability to meet challenges head on - by lowering his shoulder and keeping his legs churning.

Andy Heck, a second-year graduate student from Austin, TX, is a graduate assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Rambert's team-first attitude and persistent work ethic has enabled him to be a leader by example, and has helped him rush for over 1,000 yards in his Tiger career.

Most athletes have a signature moment, one play where they make or do not make a play, that changes the outcome of a game or even an entire season.

For J.J. McKelvey, that moment came on September 29, 2001 in Atlanta, GA at Grant Field, home of the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets, the #9-ranked team in the nation at the time. With 1:58 left in the game, Clemson trailed 38-34. Tiger quarterback Woodrow Dantzler and the Tiger offense faced a fourth down-and-13 with no timeouts left. In other words, make the first down or the game was over.

Dantzler scrambled until he found McKelvey streaking down the field for a 63-yard touchdown pass, a play that changed the course of the game and the season for the Tigers.

The irony of the situation is that the play was not designed to go to McKelvey. In fact, it was supposed to go to the other side of the field. But good fortune and the evasive abilities of Dantzler resulted in a perfect play for the Tiger offense. McKelvey actually ran the wrong play. Instead of running a six-yard out, he ran a nine-step hook. Dantzler had to scramble and rolled out to the right instead of the left.

"I saw him running towards me, so I came up like I was going to block for him, but then I shot back behind the defensive back and I was open," recalled McKelvey. "I just caught the ball and ran the rest of the way for the touchdown."

One would never have guessed that McKelvey would have made a key offensive play, a season-defining moment when he first came to Clemson in 1999. He was recruited to Clemson as a linebacker with the option of playing at a safety position.

One could not doubt the decision by the Clemson coaches. In high school, McKelvey played on both sides of the ball, but he excelled on defense. During his last three seasons, he had an incredible 19 interceptions as a safety. He recorded 43 tackles and nine interceptions, returning three for touchdowns, during his senior season alone. On offense the same year, he had 22 receptions with four touchdowns, not exactly eye-opening numbers. He was an all-state player, but for his defensive numbers.

He played the 1999 season at Clemson on defense. In fact, he played six plays on defense against Marshall in 1999, the first game of the Tommy Bowden era. But, during the spring of 2000, Head Coach Tommy Bowden thought the rangy athlete would make a fine possession receiver in Clemson's offense that features multiple receiver formations.

"He has worked extremely hard to become a good receiver," said wide receiver coach Rick Stockstill. "Anytime you make a change from one position to another, especially from one side of the ball to the other, it takes a special person to do that."

According to McKelvey, the hardest part of the move was learning the offensive plays, "With the kind of offense we run, you have to learn to run specific routes. If they wanted you to run nine steps, you had to do exactly that or you would throw the whole play off."

Fans and spectators first took note of McKelvey in the 2001 game against Wofford. All eyes were on freshman Roscoe Crosby to fill the void created by Rod Gardner's graduation; but soon into the first quarter, Crosby suffered a sprained knee and was out for the rest of the game. McKelvey stepped up to bat and finished with eight catches for 73 yards and two touchdowns. He was awarded with a game ball from espn.com for his performance.

McKelvey has continued to gain attention for his performance as a receiver. Through the rest of the 2001 season, he continued to make plays for the Tigers. In the Florida State game, he had a 51-yard reception. Against South Carolina, he had a 37-yard catch to go with his 39-yarder versus Duke. His big-play capabilities enabled him to haul in 29 receptions for 402 yards and a team-best four touchdowns.

As stated above, the Moncks Corner, SC native was not born into the wide receiver position. He might not be the fastest receiver on the team, that distinction is held by Clemson track All-American Airese Currie. But what McKelvey lacks in speed, he makes up in size.

"He is not the fastest receiver out there, but because of his size, he has a chance to be one of the most physical receivers out there," commented Coach Stockstill. "He can go up and catch the ball above people, just like Rod Gardner did when he was here."

And by looking at McKelvey's statistics from this season, one would never think he was anything but a natural receiver.

Entering the North Carolina game on November 9, McKelvey ranked third in the ACC and 40th in the nation in receptions per game. He has had two games this season recording 10 catches, the first Tiger receiver in history to have two separate games with double figures in receptions. Against Ball State, he had 10 receptions for 123 yards, while at Duke he had 10 receptions for 103 yards. He caught a 15-yard scoring pass from quarterback Charlie Whitehurst with 6:09 left that gave Clemson the lead for good, a score that might prove to be as important as his reception at Georgia Tech in 2001.

J.J. McKelvey, who has 46 catches for 683 yards this season, has emerged as a "go-to" receiver in the Tiger offense.

Making big plays is in McKelvey's bloodlines. McKelvey's cousin, Mal Lawyer, was a Tiger wide receiver from 1996-99 who had nearly 100 career receptions. Lawyer was a big reason McKelvey chose Clemson over South Carolina.

"I knew I had someone related to me up here who could show me what to do and what not to do," said McKelvey. "He made it a lot easier for me. I got to meet a lot of the football players early and learn a lot about them."

McKelvey shares his cousin's jersey number, 84. The two were able to play a season together (1999) before Lawyer graduated. Now the cousins still talk two or three times a week.

"He gives me advice about the things he went through at Clemson and tries to help me," said McKelvey about Lawyer.

Family support is very important to McKelvey and lucky for him, as he has a lot of it. "My mom and dad help me out so much, financially and just being there for me," stated McKelvey. "My parents and my aunt and uncle travel to all the games and have missed just one game, the bowl game in Idaho last year. I know that I can always call on them."

Like other college football players, McKelvey hopes to reach the next level and play professionally in the NFL one day. If that does not work out, McKelvey will work hard to put his degree in human resource development to good use.

When the game gets tough, the hope of making another game-changing play is what keeps him going. "Making big plays, that is all I dream about. I love the pressure, I love the ball being put into my hands. There is a smile on my face when I see the ball coming my way."

It is that attitude that took this recruited linebacker and turned him into the receiver we see today.

The former Tiger linebacker looks to turn his successful change to receiver into a professional career in the NFL.

Clemson University's 14th President, James F. Barker, is first and foremost an architect. So it comes as no surprise that he came to the office with a clear blueprint of Clemson's future in mind - a future built around such ideas as collaboration, community, and quality.

A 1970 Clemson graduate, the former dean of the university's College of Architecture, Arts, and Humanities was named president in October 1999, having outlined for the Board of Trustees a vision of making Clemson one of the top-20 public universities in the country. From that vision came the development of a set of 10-year goals adopted in 2001 - goals that are already showing results, including:

- a 70 percent increase in research support over two years, earning Clemson a ranking as one of the nation's top 100 research universities;
- a capital campaign that raised $295 million;
- the enrollment of Clemson's brightest class ever, with an average SAT approaching 1,200;
- recognition in 2000 as Time Magazine's Public College-of-the-Year for its innovative communication across the curriculum program.

Barker attended the National Football Foundation and College Football Hall of Fame Banquet in New York in 2001. Above he poses with Tiger honorees Terry Kinard and Kyle Young.

Building a Future for Clemson

Barker earned his bachelor of architecture degree from Clemson University and his master of architecture and urban design degree from Washington University in Saint Louis, MO. Before returning to Clemson in 1986 to serve as dean of the College of Architecture, he was dean of the School of Architecture at Mississippi State University. In 1995, he became dean of the new College of Architecture, Arts, and Humanities, which was created after a comprehensive reorganization and has received national attention as a new model in education.

He is a recipient of the National Distinguished Professor Award of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture and served as president of that association. Barker was named Fellow of the American Institute of Architects. He also has been a partner in an architectural practice.

He has been awarded honorary doctoral degrees from S.C. State University and Mars Hill College, and has served on the Truman Scholars selection committee. He currently serves on the Commission of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, the region's accrediting agency.

At Clemson, Barker co-founded the South Carolina Design Arts Partnership to support community design outreach projects, initiated the Charleston Architecture Center, established the university's "Arts in April" program, and developed a Mayors' Institute to help city leaders learn how to manage issues related to growth and development.

Despite his responsibilities as president, Barker remains committed to the classroom. Each spring, he is part of a team that teaches an undergraduate course exploring "a sense of place" in architecture, literature, and history.

Success in athletics is important to Barker. The former high jumper at Clemson is omnipresent at Tiger athletic events and follows all of the school's programs closely. He recently directly chaired the three-person committee that hired new athletic director Terry Don Phillips.

The Barkers, Jim and Marcia, have two sons, 18-year-old Britt, a senior at Daniel High School in Clemson, and Jacob, 28, who works for an advertising agency in Greenville, SC. Jacob received his undergraduate degree from North Carolina, where he was also a member of the baseball team. He earned his master's degree from Clemson in 2002 and worked in the sports information office while he was pursuing that degree.

A New Era Begins

Terry Don Phillips is the newest addition to the Clemson athletic family, but he is no stranger to the world of college athletics. The long-time administrator and teacher is charged with the duty of leading Clemson into the new millennium. He will undoubtedly call on his vast experience in all areas of athletic administration to address the challenges set forth in the University's vision statement to become a top-20 public university. He began his tenure as Clemson's 10th athletic director on July 1, 2002.

The three-person committee charged with finding a replacement for retiring 17-year Athletic Director Bobby Robinson found a perfect match for Clemson University in Phillips. His resume is one of the most impressive, well-rounded personal documents in college athletics.

Academically, Phillips has an undergraduate degree from Arkansas (1970), a master's degree from Virginia Tech (1974), a doctorate from Virginia Tech (1978), and a law degree from the Arkansas School of Law (1996). He is a member of the Arkansas Bar and the American Bar Association. Phillips has also served in an adjunct faculty role at his previous stops and plans to continue to teach a course in legal studies at Clemson.

From an experience standpoint, Phillips has worked in just about all phases of college athletics. He served as an assistant football coach at Virginia Tech, supervised Spring sports and student-athlete enrichment at Florida, handled athletic fundraising and facility enhancement at Missouri and Arkansas, and has 15 years experience as an athletic director, including 13 at the Division I level.

When it comes to success on the field and in the classroom, Phillips' programs have been among the best in the nation. The achievements of the Oklahoma State program during his tenure (1994-02) included a pair of national championships in men's golf, a men's basketball Final Four, two trips to the College World Series, 13 Big 12 Championships, and 11 individual national champions. Academically, it had 53 academic All-Americans from 1995-02.

Phillips knows the importance of rivalries and Oklahoma State notched four football wins over arch-nemesis Oklahoma in his tenure in Stillwater, including a 16-13 victory in 2001 against the defending national champion and #4 Sooners. Before his arrival in 1995, the Cowboys had just three wins over Oklahoma in the previous 48 years. The Cowboys also won the first-ever Bedlam Championship in 2001, the all-sports competition between the two.

From a facilities enhancement standpoint, Phillips has significant experience, an important aspect to his new job at Clemson, where facilities improvements and corresponding fund-raising challenges command his attention immediately.

In Stillwater, the program compiled a long list of successful facilities projects, including the completion of nearly $65 million in new construction.

Gallagher-Iba Arena, the Cowboys' basketball arena, was expanded from 6,000 to 13,611 seats, and 14 suites were added. It was named the best college venue in the nation by CBS Sportsline. An equestrian center, softball stadium, women's soccer complex, golf training facility, and indoor baseball/softball facility were also a part of a broad range of facility improvements.

Phillips also supervised the planning of a $50 million renovation to Oklahoma State's football stadium that will add 2,300 club seats, 10 suites, and rebuilt concession, restrooms, press, and concourse areas. Additionally, Phillips and his staff raised approximately $20 million for capital projects, the most in the school's history, a $9 million budget growth to nearly $23 million, and a $1 million deficit reduction while expanding programs to conform with Title IX.

The Longview, TX native also knows how to attract and lead members of his community. He initiated the Orange Peel Rally, a student-produced spirit rally before the first Oklahoma State home football game that averaged approximately 20,000 in attendance. His blueprint for the event was Clemson's Tigerama, which had impressed him in 1978 when he made his first trip to Clemson with the Virginia Tech football team. The athletic program also started the Best of America Rally that introduced grade-school age youngsters to Oklahoma State University.

Phillips is the Chair of the NCAA Division I Infractions Appeals Committee, which serves the appellate role for all University and individual appeals arising from the Committee on Infractions. He also serves on the Olympic Sports Liaison Committee. He served the Big 12 Conference on the Board of Athletic Directors, Bowl Subcommittee, and Post-Graduate Scholarship and Television Committees.

Before leading Oklahoma State, Phillips served as senior associate athletic director at Arkansas from 1988-94. He ran the daily operations and had oversight of facility projects for the men's programs, and was president of the Razorback Foundation.

Phillips was also athletic director of the University of Southwestern Louisiana from 1983-88 and Liberty College from 1980-81. He was an assistant athletic director at Missouri from 1981-83 where he supervised athletic fund-raising. George Bennett, current Clemson Executive Director of IPTAY and a leader in that field, met with Phillips when he first accepted that position. Phillips began his administrative career in 1978 as an assistant athletic director at Florida, where he worked with Spring sports and student-athlete enrichment.

Phillips also has considerable experience in coaching. He began his coaching career as a graduate assistant at Arkansas from 1970-71. He then moved on to Virginia Tech as an assistant coach from 1971-78 before joining the ranks of athletic administration. During his coaching career there, he served with former Clemson Head Coaches Charley Pell and Danny Ford, and worked directly under former Tiger defensive coordinator Tom Harper.

Winning has been in Phillips's resume since his playing days. At Arkansas, Phillips lettered on Frank Broyles teams of 1966, 1968, and 1969. The Razorbacks were a combined 27-5 in those three seasons and played in two Sugar Bowl games. Phillips played for the Razorbacks in the famous 1969 Arkansas-Texas game that decided the National Championship. One of the assistant coaches on the 1968 and 1969 Arkansas teams was former Clemson Head Coach Hootie Ingram.

Phillips has two children, John Dennis (25) and Sarah Jane (21). He has three step-children, Meagan (13), Marshall (12), and Madison (10). He is married to Tricia Phillips.

Terry Don Phillips, his wife Tricia and children Meagan, Marshall and Madison are in their first football season at Clemson.

4th Year Head Coach

When Clemson was selected for the 2001 Crucial.com Humanitarian Bowl, it meant that the Tigers would be making their third straight bowl appearance - the third under Head Coach Tommy Bowden. With that selection, he became the first head coach to take Clemson to a bowl game in each of his first three seasons. That is something that prominent predecessors Jess Neely, Frank Howard, Charley Pell, Danny Ford, and Ken Hatfield failed to do. Under Bowden's direction, Clemson appeared in the Peach Bowl in 1999 and in the Gator Bowl in 2000 prior to its Humanitarian Bowl appearance.

Clemson made the most of that 2001 bowl appearance, defeating Louisiana Tech, 49-24 on New Year's Eve, Clemson's first bowl win since 1993. Clemson set school bowl records for points scored, touchdowns, and total offense in a bowl game in the victory. The Tigers threw five touchdown passes, a record for any Clemson game. The Clemson defense also limited the effectiveness of Louisiana Tech's nationally ranked offense, as the defense held Tech to but 10 points and 270 yards before reserves were summoned to the contest on both sides.

It was a record-breaking performance for the Tigers in Boise, ID, something that surprised no one who has followed the Tigers the last three seasons. In that short period of time, Clemson has set over 125 school records on an individual and team basis. Three of the top five total-offense seasons in school history have been recorded under Bowden, including the 2001 season when Clemson averaged over 30 points and 432 yards of total offense.

The 2001 season demonstrated Bowden's ability to win in the long run, as he had the second-youngest two-deep in the ACC. Thirty-four of his top 44 players were underclassmen. Only Duke had a younger group of top 44 players. Fourteen different freshmen saw action in 2001, including 10 who played in at least 10 games. Ten Clemson freshman records have been set under Bowden in his short tenure. In 2001, freshmen receivers caught 106 passes, while freshmen defensive players combined for 173 tackles and 15 tackles for loss.

Bowden has a record of 22-14 entering the 2002 season as Clemson's head coach. He has recorded that ledger against a difficult schedule. His first year, Clemson's schedule was ranked in the top 10 in the nation. In 2001, his team defeated five teams that finished the season with a winning record, tied for the third-highest single-season figure in school history. One of the wins was a 47-44 overtime triumph at #9 Georgia Tech. It was Clemson's highest-ranked road win in 20 years.

He has also gained that record with a group of overachieving players. Of the 25 teams who have been to a bowl game each of the last three years, only East Carolina (two) has had fewer players drafted than Clemson (three) over that period. Two of the years Clemson has advanced to a bowl game under Bowden, Clemson did not have any players drafted (1999 and 2001).

When Bowden came to Clemson in 1998, he inherited a team with a 3-8 record. By late October of 2000, just 14 months after his first game, Clemson was ranked third in the nation in the USA Today poll after an 8-0 start. That ranking was the highest for the program in 16 years. The final #14 ranking in that same poll was the highest final listing for the program since the 1990 season.

Making a swift improvement is nothing new for Bowden. In 1997, he took over a 4-7 Tulane program and brought the Green Wave to a 7-4 mark in his first year. In 1998, the improvement continued with an 11-0 regular season and #7 national ranking. In 1999, Bowden elevated the Tigers from 3-8 to a bowl game and a 6-6 final record. The 2000 Tigers concluded the season with a 9-3 record, its highest win total since 1993.

As you can see, considerable improvement is a common phrase for Tommy Bowden coached teams. In each of his first four years he has coached at the Division I level, his team showed at least a three-win improvement over the previous year, believed to be a first in Division I college football history. Bowden is just the third coach in Clemson history to bring the Tigers to a three-win improvement in consecutive years and was one of just two Division I coaches (John Robinson of UNLV) to do it over the 1999 and 2000 seasons.

Bowden's second Clemson team was one of the most decorated in history. Six different Tigers were finalists or semi-finalist for national position awards, including linebacker Keith Adams, who was one of the final three finalists for the Butkus Award.

Kyle Young and Chad Carson were both named first-team Academic All-Americans, making Clemson the only Division I-A school in the nation to have a pair of first-team selections. For the second straight year, the football team had its highest team GPA on record and a record number of ACC Academic honor-roll recipients. Eighteen of the 22 seniors on the 2001 team have already earned their degrees and two more will join them this year. The top-five semester GPAs on record have taken place under his seven-semester watch. Carson brought pride to the entire University last winter when he reached the final stage of the Rhodes Scholarship selection process.

The Bowden family: Lauren, Tommy, Linda, and Ryan.

When Bowden came to Clemson, he had one simple goal - improvement. Bowden warned Clemson supporters that the Tigers were unlikely to be bowl participants in 1999, but his main focus was to improve. Bowden's goal of improvement was reached and he was happy to be wrong about his preseason prediction, as the Tigers were invited to the 1999 Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl.

In 1999, Bowden accomplished a personal milestone that no Clemson coach had attained since 1981, the year the Tigers won the National Championship. He became the first Clemson coach since Danny Ford to be named ACC Coach-of-the-Year.

Bowden led the Tigers to a 6-6 record and 5-3 mark in the ACC against the nation's third-toughest regular-season schedule according to Jeff Sagarin. The Tigers finished tied for second with Georgia Tech and Virginia in the final conference standings, a six-place improvement over 1998, the greatest one-season jump in ACC history in league play.

The improvements in the ACC standings were thanks in large part to an innovative offensive attack. The Clemson offense ended the season averaging 402.6 yards per game, nearly a 100-yard per game improvement over 1998. The Tigers scored 26.8 points per game in 1999 compared to 19.8 in 1998. Clemson's 42 touchdowns in 1999 ranked fifth best in school history. Clemson has exceeded that touchdown total each of the last two years.

Under Bowden, Clemson continued its strong defensive tradition. With 47 sacks, Clemson was first in the ACC in that category for the second straight season, and the final total established a school record. Three players (Keith Adams - 15.5, Chad Carson - 12.0, Robert Carswell - 10.8) all had nearly 11 tackles per game in 1999 to rank among the top-four tacklers in the league.

Adams, a sophomore that season, finished with 186 tackles, highest in the nation, and broke the Clemson single-season tackle record held by Anthony Simmons. They all contributed to the 17th best pass efficiency defense in the nation, a unit that had 19 interceptions, ninth highest in the country.

Four of Clemson's losses in 1999 came against teams ranked in the top 15 of the final AP poll. Bowden Bowl I, the first ever meeting between father and son head coaches in college football history, took place on October 23, 1999. Bowden faced his father Bobby's top-ranked Florida State team in Death Valley in front of a national television audience. The Tigers lost a tough battle to the eventual National Champions, 17-14, the closest margin of victory for the Seminoles and the fewest points they recorded all season by two touchdowns.

Making strong improvement in his first year with a program was nothing new for Bowden. In the two seasons he was the head coach at Tulane, Bowden took a team that had been 4-18 in the two years previous to his arrival, and emotionally and numerically reversed the team's fortunes with an 18-4 record, posted an 11-1 conference mark, and finished the 1998 season ranked seventh in the nation by both polls. Tulane and Tennessee were the only undefeated teams in college football in 1998.

His Tulane team had a 22-game average of 39.7 points, 5.1 touchdowns, 463 yards of total offense, 270.5 yards passing, and 192.6 yards rushing. The Green Wave averaged 6.34 yards per play, and converted on third down 47 percent of the time.

Some say the most telling statistic in terms of wins and losses, and the most telling statistic when it comes to coaching ability is turnover margin. The Green Wave ranked fifth in the nation in turnover margin each of his seasons at Tulane.

It didn't take Bowden long to put Tulane back on the college football landscape. In his first year, Tulane was picked last in the preseason polls of Conference USA. But he led the New Orleans based school to a 7-4 record, a second-place conference standing with just one league loss, and set 33 school records in the process, including 26 on offense.

Tulane's accomplishments on offense were noteworthy in 1997, but its offensive charts reached uncharted areas in 1998. Tulane stood as the nation's only school to average over 300 yards per game passing and 200 yards per game rushing. Tulane ranked fourth nationally in total offense (507.1 per game) and second in scoring (45.4 per game).

The Green Wave scored 40 or more points in eight contests in 1998, including each of the last seven games. In one game, the Green Wave scored 72 points and rolled up 704 yards of total offense. They converted 52 percent of their third-down opportunities for the season and had just 11 turnovers in over 800 plays. The 1998 season saw Tulane post a perfect 11-0 regular season under Bowden, its first perfect regular season since 1931. The Green Wave won Conference USA, its first league title since Tulane won the SEC in 1949. Bowden was named Conference USA Coach-of-the-Year.

Bowden's team ranked seventh in the final AP poll and was a mainstay in the polls from the third week of the season on. Tulane had not been ranked at any time since 1979, and had not been ranked in a final poll since 1973. After Bowden accepted the job at Clemson, Tulane defeated Brigham Young in the Liberty Bowl, 41-27.

A look to the list of coaches who had undefeated seasons in the 1990s shows two other men named Bowden. His father, Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden, had a perfect regular season in 1996 and 1999, while his brother, Terry, posted a perfect regular season in 1993. The Bowdens are the first family of college coaching, and this "Wonder Years" environment had a lot to do with Tommy Bowden's decision to enter the coaching world.

The fatherly influence of a college coach who reached 300 career wins against his son in 1999, also had an influence on other members of the family. Terry has been a head coach at Samford and Auburn, posting a 47-17-1 record at the latter. Terry serves as an in-studio commentator for ABC's college football package. Jeff Bowden is in his eighth year as wide receivers coach at Florida State, his second as offensive coordinator.

Tommy Bowden began his college football experience as a walk-on wide receiver at West Virginia. He played for his father between 1973-75 and then for Frank Signetti during the 1976 season.

As a junior, he caught 15 passes for 189 yards and one score. Bowden remained at West Virginia for the 1977 season and began his coaching career, serving as a graduate assistant on Signetti's staff. His interest in coaching only became more intense after that first year as a graduate assistant. His father then hired him as a secondary coach at Florida State for the 1978 season.

That experience confirmed to Bowden that he was in a profession that would be his life's work. The Seminoles posted a 19-4 mark in his two seasons at Florida State.

In 1980, Bowden joined the staff at East Carolina, where he coached for the Spring practice session of 1980. That spring, he moved to Auburn and served as the Tigers running backs coach for the 1980 season. Among the players he coached was James Brooks, who went on to a 13-year NFL career and is still second in Auburn history in rushing.

In 1981, Bowden returned to Tallahassee as the tight ends coach. In two more years at Florida State, the Seminoles posted a 15-8 mark. The 1982 team ranked 13th in the final poll, claimed a 9-3 record, and won a Gator Bowl championship.

In 1983, Bowden accepted his first job as a coordinator. He served under Steve Sloan at Duke as the Blue Devils' quarterbacks coach and offensive coordinator. It was as the Duke offensive coordinator that Bowden made his first trip to Death Valley as a coach. Among the players Bowden tutored was Anthony Dilweg, who went on to the NFL.

After four years at Duke, Bowden became the wide receivers coach at Alabama under Bill Curry. It was at Alabama that Bowden refined his offensive coaching prowess under noted offensive mind Homer Smith, then the Tide offensive coordinator.

In 1990, Bowden returned to a coordinator role, serving Kentucky as offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach. That year, he helped the Wildcats to their first upper division SEC finish since 1984.

In 1991, Bowden joined Pat Dye at Auburn. He would remain with Auburn for six years, his longest stint as a college assistant coach. During his tenure, Auburn was a combined 46-20-2, including a perfect 11-0 season in 1993. Auburn had four Associated Press top-25 seasons, including a #4 final ranking in 1993 and a #9 final rating in 1994. The Tigers were 20-1-1 in 1993-94 combined. Bowden worked under his brother, Terry, for his last four years at Auburn and the Tigers had a 36-9-1 record with both Bowdens on the staff.

Born on July 10, 1954, in Birmingham, AL, Bowden is married to the former Linda Joan White, who he first met when the two were in school together at Morgantown (WV) High. The couple has two children, Ryan (20), a junior at Clemson, and Lauren (17) a senior at nearby Daniel High.

Clemson Memorial Stadium has been held in high esteem for many years. Whether it be players from the 1940s and 1950s, opposing players from the 1970s and 1980s, or even professional players in the 1990s, the ambiance of this special setting is what college football is all about.

The storied edifice added to its legend when the first meeting of father and son head coaches (Bowden Bowl I) took place before a sellout crowd of more than 86,000 fans in 1999. Clemson has ranked in the top 20 in the nation in average attendance 19 consecutive seasons.

In the 70s, 80s, and 90s, various publications named top-10 stadiums in college football and Memorial Stadium, affectionately known as "Death Valley," has been a common denominator on those lists.

The facility's mystique is derived from its many traditions, which date to its opening in 1942, the legendary games and players, and Clemson's corresponding rate of success. Clemson has won 211 games in the previous 60 years there (211-84-7) and has won over 71 percent of the contests. Thirty-six times since 1983, crowds have exceeded 80,000.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need".

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus.

The place would take some clearing-there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work, clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally on September 19, 1942, Memorial Stadium opened with Clemson thrashing Presbyterian, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow; and grow and grow.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the stadium, including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete poured.

Howard said that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he said. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through."

"I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more week's pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have 50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard said that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 pm and we played at 2:00 pm." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of as crowds swelled - the first in 1978 and the second in '83. This increased capacity to over 80,000, which makes it one of the largest on-campus stadiums.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

In 1974, the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

"When you get to the bottom of the hill, it's like you're in a hole and all around you are nothing but Clemson fans. Its like the crowd is one big voice. You feel like little kings."

Former Clemson running back Rodney Blunt

"Running down the hill is still talked about everywhere I go. Players who played against Clemson when I was in college remember us running the hill and thinking we would gain some type of spirit. The adrenalin rush was unbelievable for a Clemson player and quite a shock for the opponent."

Former Clemson All-American Jerry Butler

"There is no place louder or more picturesque than Death Valley. There, where Clemson folks see magic in a hill and a rock, orange gets more respect than anywhere this side of Gainesville, Florida."

Terence Moore, Atlanta Constitution

"The rock has strange powers. When you rub it, and run down the hill, the adrenaline flows. Its the most emotional experience I've ever had."

Six-time All-Pro and former Clemson All-American Michael Dean Perry

"Florida was loud in the swamp. But, the loudest, not only the stadium, but the loudest place I have ever been around in my life was definitely Death Valley. I was yelling at he top of my lungs in that first series and I couldn't even hear what I was saying. My voice was gone after the second series, so we had to signal everything. That place was unreal in how loud it was. I don't think I will ever be in a louder place than Clemson."

Florida State Quarterback Chris Rix, 2001

"Clemson's record at home is not a coincidence. Running down the hill is a part of that record. You get so inspired, and so much of college football is about emotion. You get out of that bus and you hear the roar of the crowd and it gives you chills up and down your spine."

Former Clemson All-America kicker David Treadwell

"I came here knowing it would be loud and that Clemson would hit me hard, but to me, the noise was the biggest factor. I know I didn't concentrate as well because of it."

Herschel Walker after Clemson's 13-3 victory in 1981, his only regular season loss at Georgia.

"Death Valley really lives up to its image. I was impressed with this stadium. When you put 80,000 people in there, it really feels like they are on top of you. I would hate to be Georgia Tech or whoever else comes in here."

San Francisco 49ers Quarterback Steve Young

What has been described as, "the most exciting 25 seconds in college football from a color and pageantry standpoint," actually started out as a matter-of-fact entrance, mainly because of necessity.

The first 20,000 seats in Clemson Memorial Stadium were built and ready for use before the 1942 season. Less than a year before Pearl Harbor was bombed and the United States was at war.

The shortest entry into the stadium was a short walk down Williamson Road from Fike Fieldhouse's dressing rooms to a gate at the top of the Hill, which is located behind the east endzone. There were no dressing facilities in the west end zone - there was only a big clock where the hands turned and a scoreboard, which was operated by hand.

The team would dress at Fike, walk down Williamson Road, come in the gate underneath where the big scoreboard now stands and jog down the hill for its warm-up exercises. There was no fanfare, no cannon shot fired, no tiger paw flag, no Tiger Rag played...just the team making its entrance and lining up to do the side straddle hop.

That's pretty much the way things went for the next 25 years.

Either in 1964 or 1965, S.C. Jones, a member of the Clemson class of 1919, made a trip to California. He stopped at a spot in Death Valley, CA, and picked up this white flint rock. He presented it to Coach Frank Howard as being from Death Valley, CA, to Death Valley, South Carolina."

The rock laid on the floor in Howard's office in Fike for a year or more. One day Howard was cleaning up his office and he told Gene Willimon, who was the executive secretary of IPTAY, to, "take this rock and throw it over the fence, or out in the ditch...do something with it, but get it out of my office."

Willimon didn't think that was the way a rock should be treated. Afterall, it had been brought 3000 miles by a very sincere Tiger fan.

By the mid-sixties, Memorial Stadium was pretty well living up to its moniker, Death Valley, because of the number of victories that had been recorded there. Actually, the name was first used by the late Lonnie McMillian, head coach at Presbyterian College in Clinton in the 1940s.

McMillian and the other Blue Hose coaches before him used to open the season each year by coming to Clemson. Seldom scoring (24 shut-outs in 39 games) and with only three wins and four ties to show for it, his teams were getting killed by the Tigers regularly. In 1948 McMillian made the comment to the press that he was taking his team to play Clemson in Death Valley.

An occasional reference to Memorial stadium by that name could be heard for the next three or four years, but when Howard started calling it 'Death Valley' in the 1950's, the name took off like wildfire. The Tigers celebrated the 50th season in the 'valley' in 1991.

But getting back to Howard's rock.

The rock was mounted on a pedestal at the top of the hill. It was unveiled September 24, 1966, on a day when Clemson played Virginia. The Tigers were down 18 points with 17 minutes to play and came back to win (40-35) on a 65-yard pass play from Jimmy Addison to Jacky Jackson in the fourth period. That was quite a spectacular debut for that rock.

The team members started rubbing the rock prior to running down the hill September 23, 1967, a day when Clemson defeated Wake Forest, 23-6. Prior to running down the hill that day, Howard told his players: "If you're going to give me 110 percent, you can rub that rock. If you're not, keep your filthy hands off it." Howard told of the incident the next day on his Sunday television show and the story became legend.

When Hootie Ingram succeeded Howard as head coach prior to the 1970 season, Ingram decided that the team would make its final entrance on the field out of the dressing room in the west end zone. In all home games in 1970 and 1971 and the first four of 1972 when the Tigers did not run down the hill, their record was 6-9. The team decided it wanted to come down the hill once prior to the South Carolina game in 1972. The result, in a cold, freezing rain, was a 7-6 victory when Jimmy Williamson knocked down a two-point conversion attempt which preserved the win.

The Tigers have made the entrance for every home game since 1942, except for the seasons mentioned above - 286 times heading into the 2002 season.

After Clemson's final warm-up, the team goes back into its dressing room under the west end zone stands for final game instructions. About 10 minutes before kickoff the team boards two buses, rides around behind the north stands to the east end zone and debarks to the top of the hill behind Howard's Rock.

At the appointed time, the cannon booms and led by a high-flying tiger paw flag, the band forms two lines for the team to run between and strikes up 'Tiger Rag'...The frenzy starts in all sincerity...and usually lasts two and a half to three hours.

It is a tradition that has inspired Clemson players for many years.

"When Clemson players rub that rock and run down the hill, it's the most exciting 25 seconds in college football."

Driving the Carolinas

by Laura Mosher

Jeff Scott plays a difficult position. On a percentage basis, he is directly involved in scoring plays more often than 95 percent of his teammates. He does not receive recognition from game to game, but his responsibility is pivotal in every game as the holder for Clemson's placekicks.

There are a few moments, however, when he gets his due recognition. He has run five fake field goals within the past three seasons. On four occasions, they have led to first downs on fourth-down plays and had a direct impact on a Clemson win.

Scott takes pride in the field-goal unit, and he understands the importance of his role within that unit. A great reminder of the importance of field goals took place his first year in that role, when he held the ball for the final field goal against South Carolina; an Aaron Hunt kick with just three seconds left that gave Clemson a thrilling 16-14 victory. It happened again at Duke this year, when he held on another game-winner with just eight seconds left.

In the 2001 season opener against Central Florida, he realized the ultimate thrill for a holder, scoring a touchdown. "I really wanted a touchdown," stated Scott. "I came in to study film with my dad over the summer and we saw a great opportunity to run the fake against UCF."

His dad is Clemson Assistant Head Coach and Offensive Coordinator Brad Scott.

When the play was called and Jeff saw that the Central Florida lineup, he knew the fake would work. "Morgan Woodward had a great block on the linebacker, and once I saw he had made the block, I ran and scored a touchdown," recalled Scott.

Scoring that touchdown and holding for the winning kick against South Carolina are Scott's happiest moments on the football field.

Scott has had a direct effect on Clemson's success the last three years. "Jeff has worked very hard to be a receiver on the team, and has earned a backup role," said his father. "I am certainly proud of the way he has worked, and the attitude he brings to practice and games every day. He hasn't received as much playing time as our starters, yet he is willing and ready if and when his number is called."

Having a father/son, coach/player relationship has really meant a lot to both. As Jeff was growing up, he saw other fathers coaching little league and high school football, but with his dad coaching at the collegiate level, Jeff knew that was not possible.

When Jeff was approaching the college level, he and his dad agreed that Jeff should not play on the same team where his father served as a head coach. When Coach Scott's situation changed from head coach to assistant coach, it opened up the door for Jeff to fulfill his dream of playing for his dad.

"Being able to experience all those great moments together on the same field has really been special to us," said Jeff. "I am going to miss playing for him next year, but perhaps we can coach together on the same sideline some day."

Jeff realized after his first semester that coaching football was his true passion. At first, he tried to talk himself out of becoming a coach.

"It did not take long for me to determine that coaching was what I wanted to do," said Jeff. "I have been around football all my life. I really don't want to leave it behind right now."

Two people stand out in Jeff's life as role models. One is his father. He has spent endless hours with his father watching film and learning the game. The other is his high school coach Phil Sandifer.

Growing up as a coach's son has not only taught Jeff about the game of football, it has also taught him how to survive the coaching profession. He has already seen the highs and the lows of coaching. Every coach has ups and downs.

"My dad told me that if you have all your faith and all your joy from football, you will be a miserable man, because you are not going to win every game," Jeff said. "You have to keep your emotions in a straight line. If you can keep from getting too excited with the highs and too down with the lows, you can enjoy coaching for a long time."

Apart from football, Scott has excelled scholastically. He has been named to the ACC Honor Roll each of his first three years at Clemson and has the highest cumulative GPA among the upper-classmen on this year's team. Balancing school and football has been a challenge for Scott, as it is for most athletes.

"My dad always stressed education in our house," stated Scott. "Having the opportunity to attend Hammond Academy in Columbia helped me prepare for college. It is a private school that is challenging academically; so when I came to Clemson as a freshman, it was not that difficult a transition. Time management is the key."

After learning his lessons as a college athlete, Scott hopes to pass on his knowledge to his younger brother, John, who is now a freshman safety on the Harvard football team. "I am really excited for John, he will have some great opportunities at Harvard," said Jeff. "But, it is tough not having him around and on the sidelines. He has been on the sidelines in previous years and we were able to talk during the games. But he has his own games this year."

The brothers have kept in touch via telephone a few times a week since John began his collegiate career at the prestigious New England school.

Growing up, Jeff and his brother played football in the side yard at their home in Tallahassee, FL. Their father was the offensive coordinator at Florida State under Bobby Bowden during their elementary school days.

"We would live for Saturdays," exclaimed Jeff. "Everyday after school, I would go to practice and watch the Florida State team practice."

Having that personal contact with the football players and realizing the impact it had on him drove Scott to become involved with Clemson's LifeLine program, the team's leadership organization. "I know the importance of having role models when you are young," said Scott. "LifeLine gives us a chance to go out into the schools and children's hospitals, and have a positive effect on the kids."

Scott's career on the field is winding down. Only two more home games remain, today's contest with Maryland and the South Carolina game next week, a contest that certainly has a special meaning to him because he has been on both sides of the rivalry. His father served as South Carolina's head coach from 1994-98.

"When we left South Carolina and came to Clemson, one fan told me after a game that I went from wiping Tiger Paws off the driveway to wearing one on my helmet."

This is the ninth year Jeff has been a part of the rivalry on the sidelines. He held the cords for his father as South Carolina's head coach in Death Valley in 1994, and now has played against the Gamecocks two times.

"It has been exciting to see this game from both sides," said Scott. "Not many people have had the perspective I have had."

Scott will finish his degree requirements in May in secondary education with an emphasis on math. He plans to marry Sara McDaniel, a Clemson student, in June, 2003. Both have secured employment in the Richland School District in Columbia, SC. Scott will teach school and serve as an assistant coach in both football and baseball.

At that time, Scott will begin another very important job, having a positive effect on the lives of many high school-age athletes. There is no doubt it will be the start of a long and successful career as a coach and role model.

Jeff Scott's 22-yard touchdown run on a fake field goal was instrumental in Clemson's 21-13 victory over Central Florida in 2001.

Laura Mosher, a senior from Saline, MI, is a student assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Note: Clemson had more players chosen to the ACC 50-Year Anniversary Football team than any other school. Throughout the season we will highlight the career of all nine former Tigers who were named. Today we feature Bennie Cunningham.

It was just a natural thing - Bennie Cunningham coming to Clemson to play football for the Tigers. Now, after being named first-team All-American twice and winning two Super Bowl rings, Cunningham has been tabbed as one of the best 50 football players in the first 50 years of the Atlantic Coast Conference. He was the only tight end selected, making him the greatest tight end in ACC history.

"I was just raised to be a Tiger," said Cunningham. "My father worked for the university and we just got up every Saturday morning and came to the games. It was just the natural thing to do."

Cunningham was raised in nearby Seneca, so the journey was not a long one. It was made even sweeter by the fact that his friend from high school, Gary Alexander, came with him. Alexander played tackle for the Tigers and lined up right beside his old friend.

"We grew up together and we decided we were going to go to college together," said Cunningham. "Going to Clemson was an easy choice for both of us. Gary and I are still good friends today."

After a stellar career at Seneca High School, Cunningham came to Clemson in the fall of 1972. That was the first year freshmen could play on the varsity since 1952, but he did not get that chance.

"Some of the other guys who came in with me did get some playing time," he said. "I never did get to play that year. I remember the big trip that year was to Oklahoma and I didn't get to go."

However, that was the last time he was not in the middle of the action. Beginning with his sophomore season in the fall of 1973, Cunningham put his 6-4, 235-pound frame right into the action.

"Coach (Red) Parker came in as our head coach for my sophomore year and really opened things up," recalled Cunningham. "We ran the veer offense, but Coach Parker put in some plays to get me the ball more. Even though I was a tight end, he put me out as a wide receiver some and I got a lot of action. Things really started happening for me."

Cunningham started all 11 games in 1973 and caught 22 passes for 341 yards and a touchdown. He even ran the ball 11 times for 73 yards, a 6.6 average.

He remembers the 1974 Clemson season with a special fondness. The Tigers had a breakout year and finished 7-4.

"We had some really good quarterbacks, Mark Fellers and Mike O'Cain (current Clemson quarterback coach), and we really did a great job on offense," he said.

Cunningham was a big part in that Tiger offense, as he caught 24 passes for 391 yards. He also caught seven touchdown passes, still a school record for a tight end and just one off the single-season record for any player. He was also a consensus first-team All-American that year.

He does remember one downer from the 1974 season. "We had not been to a bowl game in a long time, and even though we came on strong at the end of the season, the bowls picked their teams early and we didn't get to go," Cunningham stated. "That was a real disappointment to all of us, because we had a good football team and we deserved to go to a bowl."

Clemson gained victories over Georgia and Georgia Tech that season and defeated South Carolina in the season finale. That Clemson team would have been bowl bound by today's standards, because there were only half as many bowl games in those days.

The 1975 season was a tough one for the Tigers and for Cunningham. "We had a rough year and I was hurt most of the year," he said. "I had a shoulder injury for most of that season and we didn't say much about it. The whole year was really tough on us."

Cunningham could see the foundations of the rebirth of the program coming. "We had some great athletes, like Steve Fuller and Willie Jordan, who were freshmen when I was a senior. It was easy to see Clemson was going to be better."

Cunningham caught 18 passes his senior year and was still named a first-team All-American by The Sporting News, a team that takes into account a player's professional potential because many NFL scouts voted on that team. It was certainly a good indicator of things to come.

The NFL teams were not scared away by Cunningham's injury problems as a senior. Pittsburgh Steeler owner Dan Rooney came to Clemson that year to get a first-hand look at Cunningham. At the end of the season, the Steelers used their first-round pick, the 28th overall selection, to take Cunningham. He was joining a team that had won Super Bowls in 1974 and 1975.

"We had tremendous teams in Pittsburgh and I loved it," Cunningham said. "We had a bunch of great guys and won two Super Bowls. It doesn't get much better than that."

Cunningham played for the Steelers from 1976 until he retired in 1985. He relayed one great moment from his NFL career, which has been immortalized in the NFL Hall of Fame in Canton, OH.

"I went to the Hall of Fame ceremonies this past summer to see my old roommate, John Stallworth, be inducted. At the Hall of Fame, they have a section marked Fantastic Finishes and they had a display of one of our plays. We were losing to Cleveland one year and the Browns had never won a game at Three Rivers Stadium. We ran a flea-flicker, where Terry Bradshaw handed off to Rocky Blier, one of our running backs.

"He then handed off to Lynn Swann, one of our receivers, who was coming around on a reverse. Lynn threw the ball back to Terry and he threw it down field to me for a touchdown, and we won the game. Our coach, Chuck Noll, was known as a very conservative coach, but this was a really fun play. That's as close as I'll get to the Hall of Fame!"

Cunningham might not have Hall of Fame numbers at the NFL level, but he was a solid player for a decade. He played in 118 games in his pro career and caught 202 passes for 2,879 yards and 20 touchdowns. His top reception year was in 1981, when he caught 41 passes for 574 yards and three scores. He had 36 catches for 512 yards during Pittsburgh's Super Bowl Championship season of 1979.

He is in the Clemson Hall of Fame and the state of South Carolina Hall of Fame, honors that are most deserving.

One other item of pride for Cunningham is his Clemson diploma in secondary education. "I didn't finish until 1979 because I was playing professional football, but I came back during the offseason each year and got my degree," he said. "That was something I really wanted."

Watching the games at Clemson today, Cunningham is amazed at the size and ability of the players. "When I came to Clemson, I weighed 235 and I was really big. Today, the guys are so big. They have linemen that are 300 pounds and fast. The players are so strong and so fast.

"I was at the Georgia Tech game and heard them call out the name Rhino," he said with a smile. "I had to think, 'I played against that boy's dad,' and that made me feel really old!"

After all of the accolades and Super Bowl rings, Cunningham is thrilled to be named to the ACC 50-year anniversary team. "This is an enormous honor for me," said Cunningham. "When you think of all of the great players who have played in the Atlantic Coast Conference, this is one of my greatest honors. I am happy to be a part of this great group."

Today, Cunningham is back in his home area and working as a counselor for the Oconee County Schools. He is also the golf coach at West Oak High School in nearby Westminster.

"I never played golf until I quit playing football," said Cunningham. "I just love golf and it's been great coaching it."

Al Adams worked for the Clemson Sports Information Office from 1971-78, then became the founding publisher of the Orange & White newspaper. He is currently the State Farm agent of Forest City, NC.

A Message to Our Boosters

Tiger fans, thank you for your support! As a fan, NCAA rules could define you as a "representative of our athletics' interests" or a "booster". Once identified as one, you hold this identity forever.

NCAA rules limit our booster's actions. Boosters may not try and persuade prospects, their family members or their coaches to attend a particular school. Additionally, boosters may not provide or arrange financial assistance, transportation or living expenses for a prospect, their families or friends. There are some NCAA rules that do allow boosters to help Clemson. For example, if you know of any outstanding prospects in your area, send information such as newspaper clippings to our coaches and let them contact the prospect on Clemson's behalf. You can also join IPTAY. IPTAY helps provide scholarship costs for Clemson's ten men's and nine women's teams.

Once a prospect becomes a college athlete NCAA rules prohibit anyone other than their family to provide benefits. A full scholarship covers basic educational needs, and those student-athletes with severe financial need can receive Pell grants up to $4,000 and they also can use funds from NCAA special assistance. NCAA rules strictly prohibit booster involvement with prospects and student-athletes. The penalties for ignoring these rules are too great. Help Clemson athletics operate free of booster problems. If you suspect a violation or have questions about a particular NCAA rule, call Clemson's compliance services.

Gambling

The Clemson athletic department asks for your cooperation in protecting intercollegiate athletics from the perils of gambling. Not only does the NCAA and Clemson oppose all forms of legal and illegal sports gambling, but it's against the law!

Did you know that sports wagering or gambling activities by Clemson athletic administrators, coaches and student-athletes are violations of NCAA rules and regulations? Please refuse to engage in these activities since penalties for these violations are severe. Violating these rules can result in permanent dismissal, suspension or loss of eligibility for your beloved Tigers.

The NCAA defines wagering and gambling activities as:

- Providing information to individuals involved in organized gambling activities involving NCAA events.
- Soliciting or accepting a bet for cash or prizes on Clemson or any NCAA team.
- Placing bets on any NCAA or professional athletic events through a bookmaker, parlay cards or other means used by organized gambling.

Amateurism & Agents

NCAA rules require student-athletes to maintain their amateur status if they want to participate in NCAA competition. Student-athletes will lose their amateur status if they use their skill for pay or accept promise of future pay while still competing for Clemson. Additionally, student-athletes may not sign a contract with a pro team, receive a salary or expenses from a pro team, compete on a pro team or ask to be placed in a pro draft, or enter into an agreement with an agent.

Once a student-athlete's intercollegiate athletic career is over and the student-athlete has interest in playing professionally, an agent is hired for the purpose of marketing their athletics ability. However, if a student-athlete with eligibility remaining enters into a verbal or written agreement with an agent before their eligibility is complete, they will no longer be able to compete for Clemson. In addition, student-athletes may not accept transportation, clothing, meals, lodging, or any benefit from an agent

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties supplies Tiger fans with a full day of broadcast each football Saturday. Each broadcast day has three programs, "Tiger Tailgate Show" "Game Day Broadcast," and the "Fifth Quarter Show."

A Clemson tradition since the 1970s, the "Tiger Tailgate Show," is a two-hour entertainment and interactive program produced from the stadium. In year's past, it has been done from the lawn at Littlejohn Coliseum in front of the Tiger statue. But due to renovations at that facility, the "Tailgate Show" will be produced on the lawn (at the corner) closest to Death Valley.

The program begins two hours prior to kickoff. Popular Greenville entertainers Love and Hudson along with Joe Erwin and Duane Evans play host to the show that is attended by many Clemson fans. It is the gathering place on gameday. Interviews with former Clemson players, games, display items, and pre-game excitement are all part of the program.

The game broadcast is anchored by Jim Phillips, the longtime voice of the Tigers. The legendary voice and Clemson Hall of Famer is in his 35th year broadcasting Clemson athletics. His career dates to 1968 when he provided commentary on games coached by Frank Howard. He is one of the most respected announcers in the nation and is the dean of all ACC announcers.

Joining Phillips in the broadcast booth will be former Clemson quarterback Rodney Williams. Also a member of the Clemson Athletic Hall of Fame, Williams worked the sidelines on Clemson broadcasts for six years. With Mike Eppley's retirement from the broadcast booth, Williams will join Phillips and provide color commentary. Williams is the winningest quarterback in Tiger history. He led the Tigers to 32 wins from 1985-88, including bowl wins over Stanford, Penn State, and Oklahoma.

Providing commentary and updates from the sideline will be Pete Yanity. The sports director at WSPA-TV in Spartanburg was a member of the broadcast team last year providing score updates during the game and by playing host to the post-game show. Yanity is one of the most knowledgeable broadcasters in the South and has covered Clemson football for over 15 years.

As has been the case in the past, the gameday broadcast will begin with the Tommy Bowden Pre-game Show. Bowden will meet with Jim Phillips to provide Clemson fans with the latest lineup and strategy information as his Tigers prepare for another competitive contest. Phillips, Williams, and Yanity will also provide a last minute scene setter that will include the latest lineup and weather information.

After the game, Yanity and former All-ACC Tiger Will Merritt will play host to the Fifth Quarter Show. Interviews with Coach Bowden and assistant coaches Brad Scott and John Lovett also will be included. An added feature will include lockerroom interviews with Clemson's top players that day. A rundown of the game's statistics and audio highlights will be provided. Scores and reports from the day's top games will also be provided.

Fans can also follow the Tigers by listening to "Tiger Calls" from area Ingles Grocery Stores, a one-hour program with Bowden and Phillips. This broadcast will air live each Thursday evening from 7:00 PM to 8:00 PM. It can be heard on most of the Clemson Tiger Sports Properties network affiliates. The show will begin Thursday evening, August 29.

Clemson Tiger Sports Properties also will produce the Tommy Bowden Show, a recap of the previous game's highlights. The program will give Clemson fans insight into the coaches decisions during the previous game and take an up close and personal look at some of your favorite players.

Clemson fans look forward to seeing tough, hard-nosed football when they come to Death Valley or travel to other schools to watch their Tigers in action. But some of the Tigers' most intense competition and action doesn't take place on autumn Saturday's and it doesn't take place on a field. Take a peek into the Clemson Strength Training Room at almost any time of day, almost any day of the week, at any time of the year, and you will see the Tigers building the foundation for their pursuit of a championship.

Perhaps the most impressive characteristic of the facility is its size. Several years ago, it was enlarged to an astounding 11,000 square feet, making it one of the largest in the nation. In 1998, it was expanded to 14,000 square feet. The facility boasts two full lines of Nautilus machines and over 12 tons of weights. The large number of machines and free weights allows the weight room to be used by athletes from several other sports at the same time, without anyone having to wait in line at a particular station.

Within the last three years the dumbbell area and leg development areas were expanded as well as the nutrition and hydration area known as the Power Station. The Power Station features the energy and recovery drink to aid each athlete's recovery from intense training.

The plush atmosphere provides an interesting contrast to the physical exertion that takes place in the facility. When an athlete enters the etched glass doors, he is greeted by plush, wall-to-wall carpeting, walls lined with mirrors, ceiling fans, and music from a 26-speaker sound system - a worthy backdrop for well over $500,000 worth of state-of-the-art equipment.

Color television monitors are also positioned throughout the facility. These monitors are used for training and instruction, as strength coaches film the athletes and work with them on form correction.

The large staff of four full-time strength coaches, four graduate assistants, numerous student assistants, and volunteers ensures that each football player receives proper instruction on the fundamentals of strength and speed development. Training programs at Clemson are position specific and designed to meet the needs and demands of each athlete. Also, each position is appointed a full-time strength coach that serves as a personal trainer throughout his/her career.

Hard core training and competition in the weight room and the annual Ironman Classic will help each athlete reach optimal levels in strength and speed development. The Tiger Strength Training and Nutrition Program help each athlete to become a complete player.

BREAK FROM TRADITION.

Traditionally, rich aesthetics, cost-effectiveness and color haven't gone hand in hand. If you wanted fashion color, you had to go to a specialty boutique and it wasn't going to be cheap. With Voridian's Chromspun® and Estron® yarns — you can have your cake and eat it too.

Chromspun solution dyed acetate yarn is available in a wide range of fashion colors and can also be produced in custom colors. It complements our popular Estron line of white yarns. Plus, we make all Voridian® yarns in the USA. As a matter of fact, Chromspun is the only colored acetate yarn made in America. That's a tradition we're proud of.

If you're from around here, you know the music of a mountain creek. You know the green river rocks are slicker than the orange ones. And you know that with a few flat rocks and some falling water, Mother Nature makes a pretty amazing playground. You see, we think it's our job to know you well, to discover things that don't appear on a checking account application or the back of an ATM card. We believe knowing people better makes us... well, better people. You'd be surprised how it makes us a better bank. Carolina First. We have a pretty good sense of where we are.

Vickery Hall

Since its inception in 1991, the five-faceted Student-Athlete Enrichment Program has provided its student-athletes a continued commitment to excellence. Our approach is to address the total student-athlete, and we are committed to coaching our student-athletes to success (C.A.T.S.) not only in the athletic arena but in the academic, personal growth, career, and service arenas as well. As an original member of the NCAA Life Skills/CHAMPS Program, we provide opportunities and services to address the changing needs and skills of student-athletes in the years during college and after graduation.

Clemson University's commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to the state-of-the-art strength training facility, young men and women from all 19 of Clemson's varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition. Vickery Hall is no exception, as the $3 million structure is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson University Athletic Department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in the spring of 1991 and was the first facility in the country built solely for the all-around academic support of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000 square-foot building is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of student-athletes.

The mission of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is to monitor, guide, and encourage student-athletes to fulfill their long-term goals, and to achieve their academic and career potential.

Vickery Hall focuses on five primary areas to meet the student-athlete's needs.

Academic Commitment

The academic commitment aspect of Clemson's Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has provided one of the best academic support and advising programs in the nation.

Clemson student-athletes posted an overall GPA of 2.85, the highest on record, for the spring semester of 2002. A record 37 student-athletes earned selection to the President's List with a perfect 4.0 for the semester, while 104 made the Dean's List, just one off the all-time semester record.

Two-hundred-and-twenty-one Clemson student-athletes earned at least a 3.0 or better for the semester, meaning nearly 50 percent of all Clemson student-athletes were on the academic honor roll. Seven of the 15 programs had a semester GPA of at least 3.0.

The Clemson football team had a 2.56 team GPA for the semester, second best on record behind the 2.58 achieved in the spring of 2001. Each of the top-five semester GPAs achieved by the Clemson football program have taken place within the seven semesters Tommy Bowden has served as head coach. Nine Clemson football players graduated last year, meaning 18 of the 22 seniors who dressed for the Humanitarian Bowl earned their degrees.

Many prominent Clemson athletes were named to the academic honor roll. Kyle Young and Chad Carson, both first-team Academic All-Americans in 2001, concluded their Clemson academic careers with a perfect 4.0 semester in the classroom.

The Academic Counselors perform a variety of duties to track academic progress. These duties include providing assistance in registration and scheduling, contacting faculty, personally checking classes, recording information, counseling sessions with student-athletes, providing diagnostic testing, and directing career aspirations.

One of the most prestigious programs that has received recognition essential to the growth of Vickery Hall is the tutorial program.

Of 450 tutoring programs certified by CRLA, the Clemson Student-Athlete Enrichment Program was one of the first three student-athlete programs in the country to be granted all three levels of certification from the College of Reading and Learning Association, International Tutor Certification Program. The program was also honored with the National Champs Skills Excellence Award in 1999, one of only six schools across the country to be honored.

Having tutor certification allows student-athletes to be provided the highest quality of academic assistance possible. Approximately 80 tutors are hired to provide academic support in the many subject areas offered.

Many post-graduate scholarships and internships are also available to student-athletes continuing their education through postgraduate studies. Our student-athletes are provided timely information regarding these opportunities and the resources necessary to assist in the application process for either scholarships or internships.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to provide the student-athletes at Clemson with one of the largest computer labs in the country. Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall is the Dick Hendley Micro-computer Laboratory. The lab is open seven days a week, for 16 hours on Monday through Thursday, and a limited time on the weekend. Vickery Hall is now a "wireless facility" which allows students in the building with laptop computers to access the campus mainframe without physically plugging into the system.

The lab staff has a full-time computer manager, and also graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course, as well as the many management, engineering, and business courses that deal with personal computers.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is committed to providing state-of-the-art computing facilities. New computers have recently been purchased bringing the lab to a state of the art facility. More than 50 computers are available for student-athletes.

All computers are fully connected to the internet allowing for access of computers throughout the world for research and communication.

Personal Development Commitment

One of the most important programs that helps student-athletes reach their full potential and engage successfully in this college experience is the Personal Growth and Development Program.

One of the key components of this program is the first-semester freshman transition class designed to assist the student-athlete in making a successful transition into his/her university and athletic life. All first-semester freshmen attend a semester-long series of workshops targeting the transitional issues of time management, organizational strategies, health and wellness issues, athletic issues, diversity issues, career orientation, and service training. Throughout the academic year, all student-athletes are required to attend four large-group programs, which focus on pertinent social, health, and athletic issues.

Career Development Commitment

The Career Assistance Program provides student-athletes an opportunity to fulfill career aspirations by participating in various career seminars offered by the Vickery Hall staff. The philosophy of this program is to provide student-athletes with job-searching skills and strategies, internships, practical experience, and summer employment. These programs are designed to address specific career opportunities and acquire information about the student-athletes for each year.

By using the resources available to the University, Alumni Center, and the Athletic Department, the staff is working to establish a network of businesses, companies, and executives who will help assist with the Summer Employment Assistance Program. The program's main goal is to provide the student-athletes with job experience and a work history, which he or she can apply to his or her academic discipline.

The Career Assistance Program is coordinated from the academic colleges, the Placement

Center, and through the Athletic Department contacts. This program is designed to better prepare the student-athlete for full-time employment and focuses on resume writing and interview techniques.

The SAEP career assistance program has a full-time career counselor housed in Vickery Hall. Unique to our program, the career counselor is a member of the Michelin Career Center staff as well as the Student-Athlete Enrichment staff. This link between athletics and the Michelin Career Center provides student athletes the most up-to-date information and resources in career development and preparation for entrance into the job market upon graduation.

Service Commitment

Providing community and outreach service to student-athletes and the surrounding community by engaging the student-athletes in hands-on interactive programs is an important aspect of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs. The staff of SAEP coordinates various activities each year to engage student-athletes in community outreach projects along with academic programs.

Another aspect of the service commitment is that of community service. The purpose of community service is to allow the student-athletes to become involved with the happenings of the community while giving back at the same time. Each year every team is required to perform at least two community outreach projects. Recently implemented was a new community service program entitled Success Away From the Game. The purpose of this program is to combine athletes of different sports in community outreach programs. By doing this, each outreach program participates, thus creating a diverse group of athletes with new and different ideas. At the end of each year, six student-athletes who have demonstrated outstanding commitment and contributions to the community are recognized as the Top Six by the ACC.

LifeLine, another aspect of community service, consists of chosen football players who work together in specific community outreach projects. LifeLine has approximately 20 members along with a president, vice president and secretary. Once a month, these young men meet to discuss future projects. To date, they have sponsored Hi-Five Day, planted a garden at Helping Hands Children Shelter, and held reading programs at elementary schools. These young men have vital roles in both the community and the athletic arena.

To assist our student-athletes in becoming effective service leaders and communicators, we provide service and speaking training, which anticipates the demands placed on a student-athlete when he or she might be speaking with a group of young people or also speaking with members of the media.

Athletic Commitment

Nine Clemson athletic teams posted top-25 finishes in 2001-02, contributing to Clemson's #27 finish in the Sears Director's Cup. Clemson set a school record for points scored in that national ranking and the finish was its best in four years. Clemson had 29 All-Americans, its third-highest total ever.

Clemson had a spring to remember as the Clemson golf, men's track and field, and baseball teams all finished in the top four in the nation. It marked the first time in school history that three different sports finished in the "Final Four" in the same spring. Clemson was the only school in the nation to finish in the top four in all three of those men's spring sports. The women's track and field and rowing teams also finished in the final top 25 during the spring.

Clemson boasted some of its greatest athletes in history in 2001-02. Clemson became the second school in history to have the National Player-of-the-Year in golf and baseball in the same academic year. D.J. Trahan won the Jack Nicklaus Award as the top player in college golf, while baseball shortstop Khalil Greene was national Player-of-the-Year according to the Baseball Coaches Association. Collegiate Baseball, Baseball America, and many other services. Women's track and field All-American Jamine Moton won the NCAA Outdoor championship in the hammer throw.

WE'RE NOT THROWIN' UP BRICKS

South Carolina Steel Corporation had the ideal game plan for Littlejohn Coliseum when the Tigers needed a new roof. We teamed with C.P. Buckner to provide an innovative solution for a complex, schedule-driven dilemma.

Replacing the Tigers 90,000 square foot roof structure with 950 tons of steel in 10 weeks wasn't easy. In fact, many doubted the Tigers could start their new season in Littlejohn.

South Carolina Steel Corporation and C.P. Buckner beat the shot clock and scored, replacing the roof with a stronger, better looking structure.

With over 50 years of experience designing and building structural steel solutions, South Carolina Steel Corporation knows the game. The next time you need to score big, call us at 864-244-2860.

IPTAY Endowment Program

IPTAY is widely regarded nationally as the father of Athletic Fundraising. It all started in 1934 and from a private meeting of a small group of Clemson supporters has sprung into an organization that raised a record $16 million in 2001. The organization plays a major role in ensuring that all 19 of the varsity sports at Clemson are given the maximum amount of scholarships offered by the NCAA.

The organization also has helped finance facilities that contribute to the well-being of student-athletes on and off the field. Vickery Hall is a 27,000 square-foot facility that houses the tutoring and advising programs for student-athletes. It is a major reason Clemson student-athletes have had their highest cumulative GPA on record for five consecutive semesters.

While IPTAY is primarily concerned with athletic fundraising, the mission of Clemson University has not been overlooked. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Endowment was created to help meet the need for more academic scholarships for non-athletes who are highly qualified academically. The IPTAY Academic Scholarship Fund is presently the largest scholarship endowment of its kind at Clemson, currently helping more than 40 students at Clemson.

IPTAY Executive Director George Bennett has continued to keep Clemson among the best in the nation in terms of fund-raising by the establishment of the IPTAY Endowment Program. In April of 1994, he kicked off the beginning of the endowment of positions program at the 85th birthday celebration for former Clemson Coach Frank Howard. The endowments are secure with a $100,000 donation paid over a five-year period.

"This is a chance to broaden the horizons of IPTAY," said Bennett. "It gives an individual or a group of people an opportunity to endow a position that meant something during their college days, or to honor a person at a position. The money being endowed is going to secure our future as the interest is used to carry on our program forever."

The first endowment was for the head football coach position to honor the legendary Frank Howard. Howard coached football at Clemson 39 years, 30 as the head coach. During his tenure, the Tigers won 165 games, 100 of which were against conference foes.

"Former players and friends of Coach Howard made donations over the cost of attending the celebration program and that was enough for the endowment. Their gifts were a way of permanently thanking Coach Howard for all that he did for Clemson."

"Following Coach Howard's birthday party, we began to look for an individual to help us support and promote the program, and Bill Hudson's name came up. He was an outstanding player at Clemson who has been equally successful in the business world. We went to him and explained the program and its goals, and that we were looking for his leadership to help get the program going, and he accepted."

Hudson, a 1956 Clemson graduate, was a three-year letterwinner at tackle who played professionally for the Montreal Alouettes, the San Diego Chargers, and the Boston Patriots. He earned Pro Bowl honors in 1962. Mr. Hudson sees this program growing into a large part of Clemson's athletic funding.

"When other people see information on the endowment program and learn what it is about this program will grow. Success builds on success. People who are looking to honor a friend or family member now have a great means to do that."

Besides the Hudson's family endowment, four other football endowments were made, and one managers position in the first year. Now there are more than 90 positions endowed. The goal of the program is to get every position endowed.

"From the free safety to the #3 player in women's tennis, we hope to have every position endowed," said Bennett.

"We will likely use the Avenue of Champions as a physical place to honor these people further for the positions they have endowed. That will have plenty of space, so we will be working to have as many endowments across all of our sports."

"The personal satisfaction that they helped Clemson University, specifically the athletic department, and that they are securing its future are the main reasons for becoming involved."

And with more involvement, Clemson University will have a very secure future for generations to come.

Note: Each program this year, we will review the greatest games in Clemson history by position. Today we recall the greatest game in history by a Clemson defensive lineman.

Choosing the greatest game ever played by a defensive lineman is more difficult than one might think, especially at a school such as Clemson, who has had more than its share of big-time linemen over the years. Who can forget past greats like Jim Stuckey, Jeff Bryant, or the Perry brothers?

Clemson has a trio of former stars now in the NFL who are worthy of consideration for this honor. How about Chester McGlockton's game when he recorded three tackles for loss and 1.5 sacks against California in the 1992 Citrus Bowl? Brentson Buckner also tallied three tackles for loss in his final game as a Tiger, a 14-13 victory over Kentucky in the 1993 Peach Bowl. One could even consider the 1996 Peach Bowl against Louisiana State, when Trevor Pryce, who only played at Clemson for one season, had three tackles for loss and had a sack that produced a fumble.

It sounds much tougher than first anticipated. All of the players and games mentioned above deserve serious recognition. However, one particular performance by a Clemson defensive lineman stands above the rest. The year was 1974. The opponent was none other than arch-rival South Carolina. The player who turned in the greatest game ever by a Clemson defensive lineman was Willie Anderson.

Better known in those days as "Big Will," Anderson recorded 21 tackles, a seemingly unattainable mark for an interior lineman. Amazingly, the record still stands 28 years after it was set. In fact, Anderson remains the only defensive lineman in Clemson history to post 20 or more tackles in a single game.

"Last year had me more jacked than anything else," Anderson said at the time. "All South Carolina talked about after last year's game (a 32-20 Gamecock victory in Columbia) was how they moved up the middle on us. They never mentioned the fact that they never moved after I took over at nose guard."

Clemson entered the game with a 6-4 record, but felt slighted by not being selected for a bowl game. Anderson and his fellow Tigers used the adversity as a source of incentive and treated the matchup as if it were the team's bowl game.

Anderson, a senior middle guard, came out with a vengeance in the contest. He totaled three tackles on South Carolina's opening drive and helped the Tiger defense get off to a fast start. Behind a strong defense and the all-purpose running of Ken Calicut, Clemson jumped out to a 20-7 lead.

South Carolina came out determined to establish the run on the ensuing drive. However, Anderson was up to the challenge. He notched consecutive tackles on runs off right tackle and the Gamecocks were forced to punt.

On the following Gamecock possession, Anderson recorded tackles on four consecutive running plays. He consistently clogged up the middle of the line and helped force South Carolina quarterback Jeff Grantz into an interception on the next play. Anderson and his fellow linemen pressured the All-

American into only 103 passing yards and three crucial interceptions.

"I probably played just a little harder," Anderson told the Associated Press after the game. "The only thing on my mind from Friday night to Saturday morning was to stop Grantz. I felt like we were gonna stop 'em."

Clemson rushed for 433 yards in the contest, while South Carolina was only able to muster about 350 yards of total offense. Clemson cruised to a 39-21 victory, with much of the credit deservedly going to Anderson. He received the R.F. Poole Award for his accomplishments, which is given annually to the top offensive and defensive players of the Clemson-South Carolina game.

Anderson was not an imposing figure by any means. He played his senior year at 6-2, 211, which was a little undersized, even in those days. The year before, he was a starting linebacker for Clemson. Small or not, Anderson's play in that game was big any way one looks at it. He was named lineman-of-the-week by the Associated Press. He was also named the national player-of-the-week by Sports Illustrated. Anderson credited the accolades to the team's preparation leading up to the game.

"All week long, we thought about nothing but them," Anderson said. "USC came ready to play, but we showed them we were ready too. It all came down to who the better team was, and I think we left little doubt that we were."

Anderson, a First-Team All-ACC selection in 1974, came to Clemson from the small town of Mayesville, SC. He lettered in four sports (football, baseball, basketball, and track) during his time at Mayewood High School, which lies just outside of Sumter. He finally settled into a position at middle guard as a senior for the Tigers and capped off his incredible season with a dominant performance in the win over the Gamecocks.

For the 1974 campaign, Anderson finished the 11-game slate with 117 tackles and five caused fumbles. The tackle total is still a Clemson record for a front-four lineman. The caused fumble total is also a record for any Clemson player.

In addition to his impressive numbers, he had the respect of coaches and teammates. "He was consistent all year for us," Defensive Coordinator Harold Stillman said of Anderson. "He was a threat inside that forced our opponents to change around."

Following his playing career, Anderson had a coaching stint at Clemson from 1979-82, where he coached the defensive line. During his time as a coach, he made quite an impression on the players, even one of the best to ever wear a Tiger uniform.

"I have to thank Coach Anderson, who recruited me to Clemson," former All-American safety Terry Kinard said. "Years after I finished playing football, he gave me the opportunity to go to Oklahoma and serve on his coaching staff. He also impressed upon me the importance of finishing my degree, which I did (Langston University in Oklahoma)."

"It has made a world of difference. I am sure it made a difference in me getting into the College Football Hall of Fame. He cared about me many years after I left Clemson and it says a lot about him and the people at Clemson."

Anderson now works as a reverend in Oklahoma, where he helps troubled youth for the church. If his passion as a reverend is similar to his enthusiasm on the gridiron that November afternoon, Anderson will undoubtedly have a profound impact on the lives of these youth, just as he did on Terry Kinard.

Philip Sikes, a senior from Aiken, SC, is a student assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

Willie Anderson had 21 tackles in Clemson's 39-21 victory over arch-rival South Carolina in 1974. The 21 tackles still stand today as the most ever by a Tiger lineman.

The 2002 Clemson men's tennis team has all the elements needed for success, along with the drive and determination needed to return to the upper echelon of the ACC. With four returning lettermen and experience in the Tiger lineup, Head Coach Chuck Kriese is optimistic about the upcoming season.

"Our goal, as always with Clemson tennis, is to be in the top 20 and compete for an ACC championship," said Kriese, who is entering his 28th season at Clemson.

"Your team needs critical ingredients. You need strong leadership, hungry young guys, hungry freshman, and good doubles. I think we had a lot of young guys last year with little experience. This year, I see that being a lot different."

Last season, the Tigers finished 11-16 overall and sixth in the conference. This year's squad has much more experience and Kriese believes that this year's team is a top-20 one if it reaches its potential.

"Our team had great summers and the guys are a year older now. Our team will be much stronger because we have more experience."

Kriese is looking forward to the leadership of senior Goran Sterijovski, as well as transfer John Boetsch. Sterijovski finished the 2002 season with a 12-13 record and 17-9 record in doubles.

"Goran brings a tremendous work ethic," Kriese stated. "The guy has a game like Jim Courier, he is an animal on the court. He is the best ball-striker I have coached since Lawson Duncan. When he hits the ball, it sounds like a shotgun going off. This guy is exciting, he is a competitor, he fights hard, and is just tremendous to watch."

Kriese is very excited about the presence of Boetsch, a transfer from Erskine, in the Tiger lineup. "John spent the last two years as a leader at Erskine. I love his work ethic and what he brings to the table every day. He is here every day in mind, body, and heart."

Along with Sterijovski, the Tigers return three other lettermen from last year's team, including Nathan Thompson, Micah Thompson, and Sander Koning.

Kriese will count on senior Nathan Thompson to contribute early and often after posting a 17-12 mark last season. "Nathan has great athleticism and is an excellent athlete. He is a step above everyone else on the team right now. He came back and has been a dominant player so far this fall. He is a great athlete who is becoming an excellent tennis player."

Koning, a sophomore from Holland, returns after a solid freshman campaign. Koning compiled a 23-8 record last season for the Tigers, and Kriese hopes he will continue his excellent play this season.

"I call Sander the 'Dutch Machine' because he has a gear he goes to under competition and he is able to maintain a tempo. His tempo is higher than just about any player I have seen in a while."

Micah Thompson returns after posting a 9-12 record last season. "Micah is dependable, reliable, never complains, and does his job," said Kriese. "I call him the 'Silk Man' because he is smooth, quick, and a wonderful athlete."

Two talented newcomers that Kriese expects to step in and contribute early are transfer Ashish Misquith and true-freshman Jarmaine Jenkins.

Misquith joins the team after competing at Tyler Junior College. "Ashish has great hand-eye coordination, good work ethic, he is serious on the court, and is a very intelligent player," said Kriese.

Jenkins, a native of Atlanta, GA, won the Southern Scholastics over the summer. "Jarmaine has excellent athletic ability and excellent work ethic," said Kriese. "Talk about the eye of the tiger! When he competes, he looks as if he is ready to eat your lunch. I am incredibly impressed with his gameday demeanor."

Brett Twente, Ian Keeler, and Scott Hartley will also add depth to Clemson's lineup this season.

"Ian is a good athlete and is coming fast with his tennis as well," said Kriese. "Scott brings great work ethic and is an excellent competitor. I look for him to improve a lot over the course of the year."

Twente is a walk-on from Naples, FL, and his play on the court this fall has already impressed Kriese. "Brett is one of the biggest surprises. He is an excellent athlete, and as far as making strides, he is coming on fast. He is serious about tennis and it is just a matter of time for him."

The Tigers have been working hard this fall not only on the court, but off. "I have gone back to old school training this season," said Kriese. "I think the more you sweat in peace time, the less you bleed in war. We are doing blue-collar work and I think you earn your confidence through your work ethic."

In 2003, the Tigers will face a difficult schedule, including Georgia, Washington, Tulane, Harvard, Seniors Micah Thompson and Goran Sterijovski hope to lead Clemson back to national prominence in 2003.

Minnesota, and Boise State along with the traditional ACC foes. However, Kriese believes that will help Clemson tennis rise to the next level.

"We have always played teams that are the top squads in the country. Association breeds assimilation. You become who you hang around with, especially in tennis."

The Tiger coaching staff has a new addition with Chuck McCuen, who came to Tigertown from Georgia State. He was the head coach at Georgia State for 19 years, and during that time won five conference championships and took the Panthers to the NCAA Tournament three times. McCuen was named conference coach-of-the-year five times and also coached 14 all-conference players. Kriese is very excited about McCuen and feels that he will make a big impact on the Clemson tennis program.

"Chuck is probably the best recruit I have ever had in my 28 years of coaching. He brings a lot of experience, and we are pretty lucky to get him. The fact that he would come here and go back from being a head coach to an assistant coach says a lot. He has no ego, the guy just has work ethic. He brings a lot to the table every day. He wakes up with fire shooting out his ears every morning."

Kriese knows what it takes to help Clemson once again become a dominant program. The 2003 men's tennis team has the experience and elements needed for a successful season and a return to the forefront of college tennis.

Clemson will play host to the Maryland Terrapins today in Death Valley. Leading the charge in the stands, as always, is the band that "shakes the Southland," the Clemson University Tiger Band.

Prior to the start of today's game, the band will perform the 2002 version of its fabled traditional pregame. The pregame will showcase "Tiger Rag" and the "Orange Bowl March," where the band spells out "Tigers" in script. The show will continue with "God Bless America," the "Star Spangled Banner," and the Clemson University Alma Mater. The band will conclude the pregame ceremonies by repeating the "Orange Bowl March," and while getting into position, the band will change its tune to "Tiger Rag."

While the band spells out "Tigers" in script, the honor of "Dotting the i" is always bestowed upon a group of special individuals. This week, in light of Military Appreciation Day, the family members of former Clemson graduate Captain Dan McCollum have accepted this honor.

McCollum, who graduated from Clemson in 1996, was killed in action while serving his country in Afghanistan. A native of Irmo, SC, he was the first South Carolinian to die in Operation Enduring Freedom. He lost his life on January 9 along with six other marines when their plane crashed into a mountainside near the Afghanistan border.

He earned his Marine Corps Commission in 1997 and then earned his pilot's wings in 1999. He served as an adjutant in his squadron and also as a Marine Corps martial arts instructor.

"He was the greatest friend anyone could ask for," said Marine Captain Drew Hess, who served with McCollum in Afghanistan in the same Marine aviation unit. He added reminiscently, "He would give you the shirt off his back."

McCollum is survived by all of his family members in attendance today. Included in today's pre-game ceremonies are his wife, Jennifer, his mother, Betty Lorick, his brother, Matt, an Army tank commander, and his wife; and also, most notably, his four-month old son Daniel.

"He (Little Daniel) is the light of my life," said Jennifer. "He is the happiest baby."

"A lot of people do not have anything to believe in," said Daniel's mother Betty. "He had a lot to believe in."

The Military Appreciation Day ceremonies will continue during the halftime show. Under the command of Tiger Band Director Dr. Mark Spede, the band has chosen a variety of musical selections that reflect Clemson's long-standing military heritage. The halftime show will begin with a selection titled "Retro Tiger Band." During this introduction, the band will perform a marching maneuver that often was performed by Clemson's marching bands in the 1950s. Following the band's introduction, a 21-gun salute will take place in honor of Clemson's "Scroll of Honor." The members of Clemson University's ROTC program will conduct this salute.

A group of bagpipers will play "Amazing Grace" in honor of all Americans who have made the ultimate sacrifice while serving their country. Next, the band will honor the Clemson Corps of Cadets with the playing of an "Armed Service Medley." This medley will include the songs of the Marines, the Coast Guard, Air Force, Navy, and Army.

Dr. Spede requests for all patrons to recognize Mr. Dean Ross, who will be honored for bringing "Tiger Rag" to Clemson in 1942 and making it the school's official fight song. The band will conclude the halftime ceremonies with an arrangement of "Stars and Stripes Forever," as a flyover will occur in the skies above Death Valley.

Remember that you can take home the sounds of Tiger Band by purchasing the group's CD "Shakin' the Southland." The CD features 30 famous Tiger fan favorites from previous football seasons. It includes "Sock It To 'Em," "Eye of the Tiger," and the Clemson Alma Mater. The CD is available at the Tiger Band Office (119 Brooks Center) for $15. To order by mail, send a check payable to CUTBA for $17 ($15 plus $2 shipping and handling) to CUTBA c/o Clemson Tiger Band, 119 Brooks Center, Clemson, SC 29634-1505.

Care you can believe in

2003 Clemson Baseball

by Louis Garmendia

The 2002 Clemson baseball season was one of the most successful in school history. Besides the numerous team and individual milestones that were set, the Tigers ended their season in college baseball's holy land...Omaha, NE, and the College World Series. But with the loss of many key players, there is one question that predominates most fans' minds...can Clemson make it back to the CWS?

"This will be an exiting year," said Head Coach Jack Leggett. "We lost some offensive firepower, but we will be a different type of team. We will be an exciting team on the bases."

Gone are 2002 unanimous National Player-of-the-Year Khalil Greene, Clemson's all-time home-run king Jeff Baker, and the versatile Jarrod Schmidt. The top two pitchers from last season, Matt Henrie and Steve Reba, also departed along with B.J. LaMura. But the cupboard is not bare in 2003, which returns a solid defense, an All-American first baseman, and a deep pitching staff.

"We will still have a little bit of pop," said Leggett. "Maybe not as much home run power, but we will still be able to play defense. Our pitching depth is going to be strong."

The leader of the team will be fifth-year senior Michael Johnson. The All-American turned down a professional baseball contract to come back to Tigertown and he needs just 14 homers to break Baker's career home run record of 59. The record will fall if he has anywhere near the season he had last year. Johnson batted .384 with 25 home runs and 81 RBIs. He came up big in the clutch, hitting the game-winning home run against Arkansas to clinch the Super Regional and blasting two home runs in Omaha. Johnson dislocated his ankle in fall practice, but is expected to make a full recovery in time for the season opener in February.

Centerfielder and captain Kyle Frank also returns to give the Tigers veteran leadership. Frank started all but one game in 2002, did not commit an error, and hit .324 with four home runs and 43 RBIs.

Outfielder Zane Green is poised for a breakout season after a torrid 2002 NCAA Tournament. From the leadoff spot, he hit six home runs in the NCAA Tournament. Green is expected to start and give the Tigers another long-ball threat.

Sophomore Roberto Valiente started 30 games in the outfield and batted .323. Ryan Hub will provide depth in the outfield along with utility man Jeff Hourigan, who played as a pitcher, designated hitter, outfielder, and first baseman last season.

Joining Johnson on the right side of the infield will be David Slevin, who started 56 games at second base. Russell Triplett backed up Baker at third base and showed he was capable of doing the job. Triplett earned Second-Team All-ACC honors as a utility player and can play any infield spot.

The biggest question mark on the diamond will be at shortstop. Sophomore Garrick Evans is a strong and athletic player who showed potential in limited action at the plate.

The Tigers have two solid returnees behind the plate. Senior Steve Pyzik started 36 games and sophomore Collin Mahoney 26. Mahoney crushed most of his six homers last year.

The pitching staff returns sophomore Jeff Hahn and junior Patrick Hogan, who had the hottest arms at the end of the season and should take on expanded roles in 2003. Hahn notched a save to clinch the Clemson Regional title and picked up a win in relief against Georgia Tech in Omaha. Hogan finished the year with a 2-1 record and a 3.79 ERA.

Senior sidearm Paul Harrelson led the team with eight saves a year ago and will be one of the leaders in the bullpen. After starting in the bullpen, sophomore lefty Tyler Lumsden found a home as a starter. He had a 4-1 record late in the season and could become an effective starter as one of only two southpaws on the 2003 squad. Hard-throwing junior Steven Jackson finished the 2002 season 6-1 and will compete for a starting spot.

The returning Tigers will be joined by a host of freshmen and transfers that Baseball America ranked as the nation's seventh-best recruiting class.

Despite losing four first-round draft picks to the pros, Clemson still signed six players who were drafted, including Kris Harvey, son of former Major Leaguer Bryan Harvey, and Brad McCann, who will vie for the starting spot at third base.

Along with the newcomers on the field, Tom Riginos was named assistant head coach, arriving from Stetson. Bradley LeCroy and Seth Miller were also added to the coaching staff.

Leggett believes the unity of last year's squad will carry over into 2003. "I think the strength of this team is team chemistry. Everyone has got to believe and everyone has got to be involved as one, and if we can do that, we have a chance to have a strong and tough team to beat. We will have a little more speed and our pitching depth is going to be good from top to bottom.

"We have to come up with a consistent shortstop, be consistent behind the plate, and play good defense. We are going to be an offensive team that takes advantage of opportunities and executes, and does a good job with the fundamentals."

Clemson will need the unity in order to play what Leggett calls "one of the toughest schedules that anyone could play," including 30 games against teams in the 2002 NCAA Tournament. Four games against South Carolina will once again highlight the non-conference schedule, along with road series at Auburn and Georgia Southern. Add ACC series against Florida State, Georgia Tech, Wake Forest, and the rest of one of the nation's toughest conferences.

Fans will find that 2003 Clemson Baseball will have a new look, both on and off the field. Tiger Pride renovations to Doug Kingsmore Stadium are Michael Johnson will lead Clemson's pursuit of its 17th straight NCAA Tournament appearance in 2003.

Gaining Ground

Clemson University has a proud tradition of military excellence. Founded as a military school in 1889, Clemson built its reputation by consistently graduating well-prepared officers. Today, Clemson Army and Air Force ROTC cadets carry on the rich tradition of the historic Corps of Cadets. These talented young men and women will serve our great nation in every corner of the globe as the future leaders of our Armed Forces. Through their patriotic duty, the distinguished and selfless service of the Clemson Corps of Cadets will be kept alive.

Thanks to THE CLEMSON CORPS, the growing success of Clemson's Army and Air Force ROTC programs is helping the University gain ground on the road to the top 20. Since its founding in 1998, THE CLEMSON CORPS has made a tremendous difference in the strength of our military programs.

- The number of ROTC freshmen has doubled!
- Total ROTC cadet enrollment has risen from 215 in 1998 to 360 in 2002 — a 70 percent increase!
- The quality of applicants has improved.
- The commissioning rate has increased dramatically — a projected 100 percent by 2003!

If you share a deep-rooted love for Clemson's heritage of military excellence and wish to strengthen it, join in supporting our ROTC programs by contributing to the Clemson Corps Scholarship Fund. For more information, contact the Clemson Corps Fund at 864-656-5896 or visit our Web site at www.alumni.clemson.edu/clemsoncorps.htm.

Scroll of Honor

To help preserve Clemson's proud military tradition, THE CLEMSON CORPS is creating a Scroll of Honor. The Scroll of Honor will include the names of all Clemson alumni who have given their lives in service to their country from the Spanish-American War through current operations in Afghanistan. Those alumni who have been identified to date are listed on the following pages.

If you have a family member, friend or acquaintance who was a member of a uniformed service and gave the ultimate sacrifice during war, armed conflict or peacetime operations, please let us know. When responding, please include the service member's name, graduating class or dates of attendance at Clemson; date and circumstance under which the person was killed; and the name, address and telephone number of the person submitting the information.

The following article was printed in the September 12, 2002 edition of The Greenville News.

U.S. Marine Capt. Daniel McCollum made only one phone call to his mother after his deployment to the Afghan region last December. He told her he believed in his mission.

Just over a month after being deployed, McCollum, 28, died when his KC-130 aerial tanker slammed into a mountainside in Pakistan. McCollum, co-pilot of the plane, was among the seven Marines killed during the Jan. 9 resupply mission.

McCollum lived his beliefs to the best of his ability, his mother, Betty Lorick, said.

"He was not afraid to protect his people and to stand up for what he believed in," said Lorick, of Columbia.

An Eagle Scout, high school wrestler, and JROTC member, McCollum graduated from Irmo High School in 1992 and earned a degree in mechanical engineering from Clemson University in 1996. He was commissioned a Marine Corps officer in 1997 and earned his pilot's wings in 1999.

He married Jennifer Harkey on May 26, 2001. She gave birth to their son, Daniel Gardner McCollum Jr., on June 11 in San Diego.

McCollum was the first South Carolinian killed in combat in the Afghan war. As of mid-August, 38

Americans had been killed in combat and noncombat incidents in Afghanistan, and more than 340 had been wounded, according to globalsecurity.org, an organization that focuses on security issues in the new millennium.

Lorick said she would like to go to the beach and forget about Sept. 11. But that's not what should be done, she said. On that day, she will honor her son and other members of the military.

"If we forget about it, we allow it to happen again. So I know that it will be very, very painful. Memorial Day was (painful), and yet, we need to go through that pain so that we don't get slack, so that we don't get negligent, so that we don't get unappreciative of what's being done this very day," Lorick said.

"It is phenomenal to me that we've had as few deaths and accidents as we have," she added.

Early military interest

McCollum became interested in the military as a child living in Beaufort near the Parris Island Marine Corps Depot, Lorick said. Most of his friends were children of Marines stationed there, and McCollum and his brother, Matt, played on the athletic teams coached by Marines.

"Matt and Dan were greatly influenced by a love for their country because that was taught out there on the playing field. They learned a different side of their country than people that are never exposed to the military," Lorick said.

The family lived in Beaufort through McCollum's sixth-grade year.

Her father's stories of being in the Navy, a third-grade teacher's portrayal of U.S. history and McCollum's days as a Boy Scout also contributed to his military interest, Lorick said.

McCollum knew by fourth grade that he wanted to be a Marine pilot. That same year, a classmate wrote an essay about how McCollum was the person he admired most.

He was a hero to the boy because he would pass him the ball for touchdowns during flag football games, she said.

"He was a loving, caring, sensitive little boy, and that continued on into his manhood. That did not mean he was a softie," Lorick said.

Captain Daniel McCollum, a 1996 Clemson University graduate, tragically lost his life in Afghanistan while serving the United States of America during Operation Enduring Freedom.

She recalled picking him up from a training class with her husband, Charles, at Quantico, Va., when his commander told them McCollum's heart is what impressed him most.

No fear of military

Lorick said as a mother she had more fears of McCollum drowning while scuba diving, or having a car accident when he traveled back and forth from Clemson than of the dangers of serving in the military.

"There are a lot fewer plane wrecks, plane crashes than there are car wrecks," she said.

Lorick saw her son, who was stationed in California, twice before he was deployed on Dec. 7, the day before his 28th birthday.

"We feel like we were very fortunate in the sense that we had time to say to one another what needed to be said, and a lot of people don't have that opportunity," Lorick said.

It was during their visit at Thanksgiving that McCollum and his wife told their families they were expecting their first child.

The Dan Jr. Annuity Fund, started by the Irmo High School JROTC Booster Club, is taking donations so that Jennifer McCollum can stay home and raise Dan Jr., something McCollum wanted.

"We're very proud of him, and we miss him very much," Lorick said.

Military Appreciation Day

Today, Clemson remembers its military heritage. The university was a military college (known as Clemson College in those days) from its opening in 1893 to 1955. The following is a list of activities planned for today's Military Appreciation day:

- The Clemson Scroll of Honor will be displayed on Pawvision, listing 459 known Clemson alumni who have given their lives in service during World War I, World War II, Korean War, Vietnam War, Cuban Missile Crisis, Afghanistan, and peacetime operations.
- "Dotting the i's" will be the family of Daniel G. McCollum, Clemson University class of 1996. McCollum's wife (Jennifer) and son (Daniel) are joined by his parents and brother at today's game.
- A game ball, American flag (33' x 66'), and Tiger Paw flag (10' x 15') will be parachuted into the stadium during pregame ceremonies by a Green Beret Parachute team from the U.S. Army Special Operations Command stationed at Fort Bragg, NC.
- An Air Force C-130, piloted by Clemson alum Colonel McDowell, from Pope Air Base in North Carolina will fly over the stadium during the National Anthem.
- The South Carolina National Guard will provide an Apache helicopter flyover during halftime.
- Military hymns will be played at halftime, as we ask veterans from each branch to stand and be recognized during their hymn.
- A Garrison flag will be unfurled at halftime.
- The Upstate United Pipe Band will perform "Amazing Grace" after a 21-gun salute at halftime.
- Names of Clemson ROTC Scholarship cadets will be listed on Pawvision.
- There are static military displays on Bowman Field in front of Tillman Hall.
- All Clemson players have an American flag displayed on the back of their helmets.
- Approximately 1,000 Junior ROTC cadets will be seated together in the stadium.
- Over 10,000 Clemson alumni have served in military action.
